National Agriculture Bankers Visit Pennsylvania

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A group of national agriculture lenders were in town last weekend into Monday to visit local farms and agribusinesses and attend educational seminars on the unique aspects of agriculture.

The meeting agenda Monday morning included subjects related to working relationships between lending institutions and agribusiness; legislative initiatives and agriculture trade options. These subjects were covered by Bruce Limpert, director of corporate planning and analysis, Wengers Feed Mill, Inc., Rheems; The Honorable Noah Wenger, Pennsylvania state senator and majority caucus chairman and acting chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, Harrisburg, and The Honorable David Spears, commissioner, commodities futures trading commission, Washington, D.C. The Honorable Samuel Hayes, Jr., Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, was the guest speaker.

In the business meeting Sunday, discussions were held on the Farmer Mac AgVantage and how to make the ABA Ag Bankers advisory work group work better. In the evening the bankers and their spouses and children visited the governor's mansion in Harrisburg.

The American Bankers Association is headquartered in Washington, D.C. and is the voice of the American banking industry. Along with participation in public relations and legislative efforts for the banking industry, ABA conducts educational and training programs for its members.

One such arm of the national organization is the Agrucultural and Rural Bankers Committee that is currently chaired by Darvin Boyd, senior vice president and director of the Agri-Finance department, First Union/CoreStates, Lancaster. It was through Boyd's efforts that the

The agricultural and rural bankers committee of the American Bankers Association toured Lancaster County last Saturday as part of the committee's annual meeting in Hershey. They visited farms and agribusinesses in the area and took a photo break on the lawn of the Robert Rohrer and Sons family farm at Washington Boro. The Rohrer family includes parents Robert and Lorraine, son Bob and his wife Robin and children Tiffany and Tyler; son Mike and his wife Lori and children Brittany, Andrea, and Mitchell, and sons Bill and Tony. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Milk Price Makes Record Jump Of $2.22

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The June Basic Formula Price (BFP) for milk was announced earlier this month at $13.10 per hundreweight at a 3.5% butterfat content. This is $2.22 higher than the May BFP of $10.88 and represents the largest price increase for milk ever recorded. The previous record of $1.12 was set in 1997. The record price decline for the BFP is $2.52.

A combination of factors are credited for the strong milk prices. Butter/powder returns are very favorable given the record butter prices. Also expectations of higher prices have caused cheese inventories to be building. Seasonal declines in milk production are resulting in tight supply conditions in some regions of the country. Additional good news shows the outlook for July to be very positive as well with price expectations expected near record levels.

At $14.49, the BFP hit an all time high for the month of July in 1996. This year the July BFP contract at the trading exchange is HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 50th annual Keystone Stud Ram and Ewe Show and Sale was held July 10-11 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Judge of the show was Bud Martin of Ohio. The show was held July 10 and the sale was held July 11, with 152 sheep sold for an overall average of $238 per animal, according to show manager David Harpster of Boalsburg.

Gary Saylor of Bell Center, Ohio, and DeWitt Evans of Jamestown, Ohio, were the auctioneers.

The show was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, and run by a committee of members.

Committee members include David Harpster, Bruce Snyder, Ron Miller, Dick Wise, Bob Calvert, Tom Calvert, Ben Bow, and George Hunter.

While most organizations make a special note of half-century milestones, not so with the Pa. Sheep and Wool Growers with respect to the Keystone Ram and Ewe Show and Sale. Nevertheless, the show has been an important one on the circuit and continues to be an important event to exhibit and offer top quality breeding and showing stock.

Next year the show is to receive national attention.

It was announced that the 1999 Keystone Ram and Ewe Show and Sale will also serve as host event for the 1999 national Corriedale youth division show, as well as an open division show and sale.

At the Pennsylvania DHIA Summer Conference, Anne Couch of Huntingdon County received the Herb Gilmore Award from Dave Slusser, general manager. See story page A22.

Dairy Of Distinction Winners Named

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) - Everyone traveling in Pennsylvania, both consumers and farmers, will have beautiful dairy farms to observe as they drive through our countryside. At this time each year the new Dairy of Distinction signs go up at the end of winning farm lanes to show everyone they have been judged to be clean, well-kept farmsteads.

This year 33 new farms have been added to the 666 farms that had been recognized up to this time since the program began in Pennsylvania in 1987.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification program sponsors these awards to recognize those dairy farmers who pay particular attention to the appearance of their land and buildings. Most people who drive by the farm don't realize that, in addition to a lot of work to produce the milk, it also takes a lot of effort to keep the farmstead looking nice, too. But whenever a consumer sees a nice-looking dairy farm, the association with good wholesome milk is easy. And milk gets good publicity from this visual association.

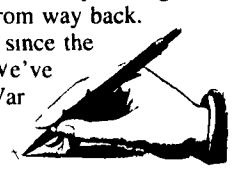
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JULY 20-26, 1998

NEW MOON, JULY 23.

ANY MAIL?

Is there anything more promising than a hand-addressed letter in your mailbox? July 26 marks the anniversary of the establishment of the U.S. Post Office in 1775 Celebrate the occasion by writing a letter to someone you remember from way back.



We've come a long way, baby, since the days of the mail-order bride. We've gone from V-mail for World War II soldiers to E-mail and "spam" (computerized junk mail) Elvis Presley would have sung, "Return to Sender Address Unknown " But nothing electronic can ever replace the "monitors," "comforters," and "heart-talkers" that are letters

The post is the consolation of life.

– François Voltaire

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ If you pick up your mail at a post office, sort it there, discarding unwanted items.

DOG DAYS ICED TEA

6 bags black tea (English, Earl Grey, etc.)
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup mint leaves, divided
1-1/2 cups chilled orange juice
1 orange, sliced
1 lemon, sliced
ice cubes

Brew a strong tea in about 6 cups of water Add sugar and about a dozen mint leaves, while still hot. Let cool, remove tea bags and mint, then add orange juice, fruit slices, and ice Serve over more ice, garnished with fresh mint sprigs, adding a fruit slice or two to each glass.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Clear on St. Jacob's Day (July 20), plenty of fruit.

The roses are said to fade on the feast day of St. Mary Magdalene (July 22).

Till St. James's Day (July 25) be come and gone, you may have hops and you may have none.

If many meteors in summer, expect thunder.

OPINION

Come To The Country

National Farmers Union President Leland Swenson recently sent a letter to members of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees urging them to come to the heartland of America and listen to the concerns of producers, not Washington, D.C. insiders. Lawmakers from both sides of the aisle have determined there is a growing crisis in farm country and that Congress must take action. This is true in the Northeast as well.

"There is deep division in Washington regarding the best way to help producers," Swenson said. "The best way to bridge that gap is to schedule hearings in rural America to listen to the concerns of producers, not handpicked agriculture and agribusiness spokespersons in Washington. The Senate and House Agriculture Committees should schedule several hearings in all regions of America to provide a forum for all farmers and ranchers to voice their opinions," he said.

Swenson added that this week's events have been pivotal in highlighting the crisis facing American agriculture. Earlier this week, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Missouri, Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., and Sen. Tim Johnson,D-S.D., held a press conference to press for changes in the 1996 farm bill. The group of farm-state legislators called for immediate action to address the farmers' financial problems by removing the caps on marketing loans, extending marketing loan terms, eliminating trade actions, creating indemnity payments, requiring mandatory price reporting by large meat packers, and requiring country-of-origin labels on all imported meats.

Montana Senator Conrad Burns and 12 other farm-state Republicans also unveiled a proposal to address the growing farm crisis. The Burns proposal provides no immediate relief for low commodity prices, but instead relies on increased trade, and a reduction in taxes and regulations to help farmers, such as passing fast track legislation, creating a farmer Individual Retirement Account, and ending trade sanctions.

"This was a good new-bad news type of week in Washington, Swenson said. "The good news is that Democrats and Republicans are recognizing that there is a crisis in rural America. The Daschle-Gephardt proposal to remove the caps on marketing loans would have a positive impact on the prices farmers receive. We are not opposed to discussing long-term strategy — but we must also focus on the current situation. After all, a farmer cannot tell the local banker that he is going to repay him with less regulation. Although less regulation may be justified, it just won't pay the bills," the farm leader said.

"Come to the country, reserve a big arena and listen to the real experts on agriculture — the farmers and ranchers whose livelihood is dependent upon commodity prices," said Swenson.

To Understand Heat Stress

With the hot, humid, hazy days of summer upon us, dairymen's thoughts turn to the comfort of their cows as they try to protect them from heat stress.

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, states some of the impact of heat stress on lactating cows is quickly visible in the form of reduced milk production. However, the biggest impact is long term.

It occurs in the form of reduced conception and longer calving intervals, reduced immune response and greater vulnerability to diseases and infections, delayed and only partial recovery of milk production lost in current lactation and a shorten productive life.

When temperatures climb above 78 degrees Fahrenheit and humidity levels also rise, cow discomfort begins. With several days of high humidity and temperatures in the 90's and little, to no relief at night, cows become severely stressed.

To Know The Signs of Heat Stress

One of the first signs of heat stress, according to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, is a reduction in appetite, especially for the more fibrous feeds, such as forages, which produce more body heat during digestion. As feed intakes go down so does milk production and body weight.

Sudden loss of body weight may cause costly calving problems and metabolic problems in the weeks after calving. Thus, it is very important to provide the proper care of dry cows and springing heifers.

To Reduce Heat Stress

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, offers the following tips to reduce heat stress in dairy cows: Provide cows shade while preventing sloppy areas.

Provide breeze for cows by using fans. Give cows easy access to good quality water. Feed in a clean, shaded area close to water and rest area. Keep feeds fresh and managers clean.

Feed lower fiber, palatable feeds but observe cows' minimum needs for digestible fiber and effective fiber long enough to stimulate cud chewing. Feed more fibrous feed during the cooler hours of the night and early morning.

Increase the mineral levels of rations to compensate for those lost due to increased sweating and urination. Avoid any practices such as vaccination, hoof trimming, regrouping, etc., which subject cows to additional stress. In severe cases, hose cows down with water.

Our peace was shattered.

In summertime Lancaster County Amish rise early, farmers are up at 4 a.m., no time to kiss the wife, quick get the boys up, slip on shoes and hat and dash out to the barn, dish out some feed.

Ga hole die kee.

"Go fetch the cows."

Another day has begun, and June 23, 1998 in the early morning was no exception, but on that day 3 Amish families would experience a tragedy, a profound disturbance of family ties like never before.

The sunrise was overcast, farmers eyed the sky, should more hay be cut, housewives fed their babies, also watched the weather, would the wash dry, could I work in the garden? Amish shop families ate their breakfast, wives packed lunches for husband, sons and daughters. Van drivers circled through the county, picking up their charges, already a slight mist was falling, looked like it's going to rain.

Vans pulled up to the neat Amish houses.

Da driver is doo.

"The driver is here."

And the husband is out the door and in the van, off to work. Young Amish brides who mar-

YOUR NEIGHBOR
July 19, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 3:27-35; 14:21
Devotional Reading:
James 2:1-13

Christians sometimes make the mistake of assuming that Jesus' admonition to "love your neighbor as yourself" was something new to his religious contemporaries. It was not. There are many texts in the Old Testament that urge right just and compassionate treatment of one's neighbor. What was new in what Jesus said was the simple way in which he compressed all those teachings into one simple statement.

Jesus also expanded the believer's understanding of who our neighbors are. In the Parable of the Good Samaritan, he helped his followers see that anyone whom we can help is our neighbor. The derivation of the word neighbor comes from the word "nigh" meaning near and "gebur," dweller — so the neighbor is one who dwells near us. In this day and age we live in a potentially much bigger neighborhood than ever before. Actually, if we know of someone's need and we can minister to it, they are our neighbor.

The sage of the Book of Proverbs does not use the word "love" in connection with one's neighbor, but he does the next best thing; he speaks of doing good to and for our neighbor. And that's what love really is, not just a warm and fuzzy feeling about someone.

INCOGNITO CHRISTIANS

What we do not do can often be as important as what we do. "Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due, when it is your power to do it." Sometimes we can hurt our neighbor by withholding the help we can give him. Just because we don't plan to harm our neighbor does not mean we are a good neighbor.

A man once told me that when a neighbor died, he was surprised to find that he was a "pillar" of a church in the community. "I never knew he went to church," he said, "or that he was even a Christian." If our Christian discipleship does not show in our neighborhood, will it show anywhere?

As I sit at my computer, I can look out the window and see most of the houses in our block. I wonder whether all my neighbors in those houses know I am a Christian? Some, of course, know that I am a retired clergyman, but that's not the same thing, is it? One can be a clergyman and not a Christian. The first is a profession, the second a way of living.

WHAT WE WITHHOLD

Can my neighbors tell that I am a Christian by the way that I treat them? If you don't count telling one of my neighbors to please turn down his boom-box, I haven't quarreled with my neighbors nor trespassed against their property. But have I withheld anything from them that I could have given them? I hope not, but you would have to ask them — as I would have to ask yours.

The sage also says, "Do not envy a man of violence and do not choose any of his ways" (3:31). I'd like to put that on large banners outside every cinema in the city of Dallas, for these are too often temples dedicated to the worship of violence and the violent person. Come to think of it, it needs to be emblazoned upon thousands of television screens where violence is also displayed and admired.

Another verse that needs to be widely posted is this: "He who despises his neighbor is a sinner, but happy is he who is kind to the poor" (14:21). Apparently that is not the prevailing mood today. In my experience, whenever the poor are mentioned — outside the church, that is — it is with derision and contempt. It is as if poverty were some virulent social disease that people choose for themselves. Today it appears to be perfectly acceptable to despise the poor.

Maybe that helps us feel justified in refusing to "be kind to them."

RAXIL®

The breakthrough seed treatment for small grains that delivers outstanding performance. And unbeatable value.

When you consider performance and price, you'll see why new Raxil flowable fungicide is your best value in seed treatments for small grains.

The unique new chemistry of Raxil helps wheat, barley and oats start healthier and yield better. It provides a new level of protection against smuts, bunts, soilborne Fusarium and other diseases. Yet Raxil is priced comparably to older systemic fungicides currently in use, and costs less than other new seed treatments for small grains.

Take advantage of the breakthrough chemistry that's tough on early season diseases and easy on the bottom line. Ask your conditioner or seed supplier for seed treated with Raxil. From the seed treatment leaders at Gustafson.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers closed .50 lower. The loss was posted on Monday, on top of last week's lower market, and then managed to hold steady through the rest of the week. A moderate offering of Holstein steers sold mostly steady. Western feedlot trade lost another dollar this week to close at mostly 60.00 live and 94.00-95.00 dressed. Increased cow slaughtering, due to the Southwestern draught, caused boneless beef prices to plunge this week. Local slaughter cows closed 1.00- 2.00 lower and slaughter bulls ended steady to 1.00 lower. This week's supply included 47 percent slaughter steers, 7 percent slaughter heifers, 36 percent slaughter cows, 4 percent bulls and the balance were feeder cattle.

Pa. Sheep, Wool Growers Hold 50th Keystone Show, Sale

The date of the 1999 Keystone is to be announced, though it can be expected to be held about the same time as this year's show and sale. It is to be held again at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

There were 12 breeds exhibited and sold during the 50th Keystone — Hampshire, Suffolk, Southdown, Finnsheep, Polypay, Oxford, Shropshire, Tunis, Cheviot, Horned Dorset, Polled Dorset, and Wether Sheep.

Exhibitors and buyers came from Canada and a number of states, including Maryland, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia, Vermont, Virginia, and Michigan.

The Keystone show is designed so that a champion ewe and ram are selected from each breed and then a supreme champion ewe and ram are selected from those.

The supreme champion ram of the show was an all-black crossbred spring ram lamb Wether sire exhibited by Lyn Lee Farms, owned by Dr. Gerald and Sue Clair of State College.

According to Steve Taylor, manager of Lyn Lee, the farming operation includes 900 acres of cropland, with about 350 Suffolk and crossbred Wether sheep, 100 Saler beef cattle brood cows, and they have about 50 sows to produce crossbred market swine for club pigs.

Taylor said he has been coming to the Keystone for about seven years, three as manager of Lyn Lee. The supreme ram championship is the second supreme title won by an entry from Lyn Lee, Taylor said. In 1996 they showed the supreme champion ewe, a Suffolk.

The supreme champion ram was purchased for $575 by Donald Bullock of Harrington, Delaware.

The supreme champion ewe of the show was a Suffolk yearling ewe exhibited by ECM Suffolks, owned by Eddie and Lisa Miller of Waynesboro, Virginia.

The Millers farm about 350 acres raising hay, wheat, corn, and the rest in pasture. They keep about 135 brood Suffolk ewes, and raise about 50 steers on grass for feedlots.

Eddie said he has been showing and selling at the Keystone from 1986 to 1994, and returned this year after a three-year hiatus. In past years, they showed at least a half dozen sheep.

John Tracey of Elizabethtown purchased the supreme champion ewe for $400.

Suffolk

In the Suffolk breed competition, the reserve champion ewe was the top-selling Suffolk. A late spring ewe lamb, it was exhibited by Hilltop Haven Farm of Woodbine, Maryland, and sold for $575 to Lyn Lee Farm.

The champion Suffolk ram was a late spring lamb consigned by Ln Lee Farm and was purchased for $400 by Steve Walmer of Reinholds.

The reserve champion Suffolk ram was a yearling exhibited by ECM Suffolks that sold for $175 to Jeff Hunter of Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Tunis

In the Tunis breed, the champion and reserve champion ewes were both exhibited by Royal and Susan Unzicker.

The champion ewe was a yearling that sold for $175 to Gary Wolcott of Brooklyn, Michigan. The reserve champion ewe was an early spring lamb that sold for $175 to Karen Carter of Dillsburg.

Shropshire

In the Shropshire breed, the champion ram was a yearling exhibited by Lane's End Farm in Jersey Shore. It was purchased for $100 by Carlin Catchcart of Dry Run.

The champion Shropshire ewe was an early spring lamb exhibited by Wey Farms of Womelsdorf, that wasn't offered for sale.

Polypay

In the Polypay breed, Lane's End showed the three champions — two ewes and a ram.

The champion ram was a yearling that was purchased by Phillip Kidney of Gainesville, Pa.

James Swigart of McVeytown, Pa., purchased both ewe champions, both yearling animals.

Oxford

In the Oxford breed, Everett Oxfords of Upper Black Eddy, Pa., exhibited the champion and reserve ewes, both purchased by David Harpster.

Hampshire

In the Hampshire breed, the champion ram was a late spring lamb exhibited by Wilson Hampshires of Rural Retreat, Virginia. It was purchased for $325 by William Stoner of Mifflintown, Pa.

The reserve champion Hampshire ram was an early spring lamb exhibited by John and Judy Moore, of Eagle, Michigan. It was purchased by Gary Wolcott .

The champion Hampshire ewe was a late spring lamb exhibited by the Moores, and it was purchased for $300 by Jamie Fought of Carlisle.

The reserve champion Hampshire ewe also was shown by Wilson Hampshires. The fall lamb was purchased for $325 by Peter Heath of Columbia, Pa.

The highest selling Hampshire was a yearling ewe exhibited by Wilson Hampshires that sold for $375 to Wolcott.

Cheviot

In the Cheviot breed, the champion ram was an early spring lamb exhibited by John and Judy Moore, and that sold for $400 to Jack Snyder of Parker, Pa.

The reserve champion Cheviot ram was a late spring lamb exhibited by Triple J Acres of Windsor, Pa., that sold for $175 to John and Judy Moore.

The champion ewe was a late spring lamb exhibited by the Wilerton family of Danvers Illinois, that was purchased for $450 by Jack Snyder of Parker, Pa. It was the highest selling Cheviot.

The reserve champion Cheviot ewe was a yearling exhibited by Erdenheim Farm of Lafayette, Pa., that sold for $425 to Betty Koehler of Allentown.

The highest-selling Cheviot was a late spring ram lamb consigned by Erdenheim Farms that sold for $550 to Circle K Farms in Bedford.

Southdown

In the Southdown breed, the champion ram was a yearling exhibited by Bruce Snyder of Kutztown, that was purchased for $125 by Joy Shreck of Bunker Hill, West Virginia.

The reserve champion Southdown ram was a late spring lamb exhibited by Jennifer Flinchbaugh of York. It was not sold.

The champion ewe was a late spring lamb exhibited by Flinchbaugh that sold for $200 to C.W. Bass of Stony Creek, Virginia.

The reserve champion Southdown ewe was exhibited by Scenic View Farm of Clarksburg, Virginia. It was purchased for $200 by Larry Welsh of Sarnia, Canada.

The top-selling Southdown was exhibited by Matt Trostle and sold for $325 to SR Farm in Arlington, Virginia.

Dorset

In the Polled Dorset breed, the champion ram was an early fall lamb exhibited by Wagner Dorsets of Easton, Pa., that sold for $525 to Sunrise Dorset Farm in Harrisburg.

The reserve champion Polled Doreset ram was a late fall lamb exhibited by Treaty Line Farm of Prospect, Ohio, that sold for $450 to Sunrise Dorset Farm.

The champion ewe was an early fall lamb exhibited by Penn State University that sold for $525 to Sunrise Dorset Farm.

The reserve champion ewe was an early spring lamb exhibited by Spring Creek Farm in Mertztown, that sold for $600 to Matthew Bankert of Hanover, Pa.

Horned Dorset

In the Horned Dorset show, the champion ram was an early fall lamb exhibited by Cassell Horned Dorsets of Wytheville, Virginia.

Cassell also exhibited the champion ewe, an early fall lamb, and the reserve champion ewe, a yearling.

Wether Sheep

A new addition to the Keystone this year was Wether Sheep, mostly exhibited by Lyn Lee Farm.

The champion ram, of course, was the supreme champion, while the reserve champion sire was a Suffolk spring lamb.

The champion ewe was a Suffolk yearling, while the reserve ewe was a crossbred yearling.

The champion ewe was purchased for $350 by Mac Magee of Shippensburg, Pa.

In addition to the supreme and breed championships, the Pa. Sheep and Wool Growers present a special award in recognition of the quality of animal offered by an exhibitor for sale. Called the Townsend Best Consignement Award, it was presented to Lyn Lee Farm, of State College.

From the left, Steve Taylor, manager of Lyn Lee Farms, the exhibitor of this supreme champion ram of the 50th Keystone Stud Ram and Ewe Show, kneels down, and is joined by children of buyer Donald Bullock — from the left, Rachel, Cara and Amber Bullock — while Stacy Suffel, an employee of Lyn Lee Farms, shows the crossbred Wether sheep ram.

Eddie C. Miller of ECM Suffolks, Waynesboro, Virginia, shows his supreme champion ewe of the 50th Keystone Stud Ram and Ewe Show.

Youth Participate In Dairy Cattle Judging Schools

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

RICHLAND (Lebanon Co.) — A total of 95 Pennsylvania youth participated this year in dairy cattle judging schools sponsored by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

For a number of years, the PHA has organized and offered judging schools for state youth, with the program designed to offer one school in the western half of the state, and one school in the eastern half of the state.

While the PHA is a dedicated registered Holstein organization, the judging schools are open to all youth involved with any dairy cattle breed, and, through farmer cooperation, school participants get to see and judge classes of top quality animals from almost every breed, depending on local herd availability.

This eastern school was held in Lebanon County this year, noted for its top quality herds of several dairy cattle breed — especially Ayrshire, Brown Swiss and Holsteins. There are some good Jerseys and Guernseys also, though perhaps not as many as in some other counties or regions.

Last week 35 youth representing a "good age distribution," according to PHA Executive Director Kenneth Raney, participated in the eastern school. Matthew Wanner, a Lancaster County dairy judge who farms in partnership with his father and brother, served as school official (judge).

The schools are designed to start at noon the first day and end at noon the second day.

At the Lebanon school, the participants visited Ayrshires at Maulfair Acres, owned by Dale and Pattie Maulfair; Brown Swiss at Gary and Pattie Mase's farm; and Holsteins at Gary and Barbara Lentz's Dream-On Holsteins farm, Adam and Lisa Sonnen's Sonnen Acres herd, and Kirby and Cheryl Horst's farm, Scott and Karen Nolt. Andy Ebersole brought Guernseys at Dream-On Holsteins.

At the western school, classes were provided by Craig and Susan Wicker, Jerseys; Tom and Lori Hartle, Holsteins; Paul and Dee Courter, Holsteins; and Dean and Brenda Daubert, Brown Swiss.

The school official there was David Trotter.

It has been evident for years that the schools are invaluable for the experience and training of judging basics, and according to Raney, Pennsylvania dairy cattle breeders ensure the high quality education.

"With the cooperation of all the farms involved, with all the extra work, everybody had good classes (to judge), were able to put together top animals and provide an opportunity to see good animals, and that's what makes the school a success," Raney said.

The Pennsylvania Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, which also operates out of the PHA headquarters in State College, also offers a school for those desiring to become listed as an approved judge of dairy shows.

The school for them is a little more demanding as classes are larger — six to nine per class — than the four-animal classes used for the youth schools.

According to Raney, Centre and Clinton counties hosted this year's PDCA judging school, with 31 people from all over the state participating.

For more information about either school, both of which are held about the same time each year, call the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at (814) 234-0364.

Participants of the eastern PHA youth dairy judging school gather in a half circle around school official Mat Wanner as they review his placing of animals and compare them to the youth's selections.

Holstein Picnic Reminder

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association state picnic is to be held Sunday, July 26 at the Keith and Debbie Decker farm in Knox.

Any Holstein enthusiast who attends the picnic and joine the association for the first time will receive 50-percent off their membership fee.

The offer is only good for first time members who sign up at the picnic.

Lunch will be prepared by the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

If they haven't been made, call immediately for reservations. Call the PHA at (814) 234-0364.

143 Animals At Southeast Youth District Dairy Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL TOWNSHIP (Lebanon Co.) — The first of two 4-H and FFA qualifying dairy shows for the state's southeast region was held Tuesday at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

There were 143 entries from 60 exhibitors in the five-breed show, considered a good showing.

Judges for the dairy show were Larry Swartz, Adams County Extension agent, and Thomas Smith, with the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Swartz judged Guernsey and Holstein cattle, while Smith judged the other colored breeds. Both judged showmanship.

The state youth dairy program was changed two years ago from the traditional holding of separate 4-H and FFA dairy shows.

Youth who wish to participate in the state youth show, held in September in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, must first have an animal qualify at one of the district-level shows held around the state.

The problem that was addressed by the switch was that FFA-only shows were getting some turnouts that were getting difficult to justify in terms of cost and labor.

A related perceived problem was that the disparity of participation among the shows created a situation where, according to some people, some deserving cows were being knocked out of the running for the state show, while some undeserving animals were being given the go-ahead.

However, the judging system is based upon a blue-ribbon qualifying system, whereby judges are to give blue ribbons only to those animals of sufficient quality to compete at the state level.

Judges were and are never supposed to be concerned with the number of animals from an area or region that qualify for the state show.

The rules were changed because the state show makes no distinction between 4-H and FFA membership, because the former rigidity of the qualifying program presented a scheduling problem (if not an obstacle) for those who actively tour with their animals to breed shows and fairs, and because the number of youth showing cattle has decreased as dairy farms and available facilities have decreased.

As it is now, any Pennsylvania 4-H or FFA youth with dairy cattle can attend any district qualifying show in the state, as long as the animal(s) to be shown has the required, valid health certificates, vaccinations, and registration paperwork is submitted by show-specific deadlines to the correct show person.

Of those animals shown Tuesday, there were 32 FFA animals and 89 4-H animals, according to show officials.

In addition to the dairy breed shows to qualify for the state contest, contestants also compete for showmanship qualifications for state competition.

In the 17-19 year-old age class, Timothy Vail of Lebanon was the winner. Kevin Nolan of Cochranville was the top showman in the 14- to 16-year-old age class. Katie Lentz of Fredericksburg was the winner of the 11- to 13-year-old age class. Erin Smith of Palmyra was the winner gin the 8- to 10-year-old age class.

For the third year, a fitting contest was also held in conjunction with the South East District Show. Out of seven competitors divided into three age classes, the senior age winner was Garrett Mase of Lebanon. The intermediate-aged winner was Amanda Martin of Lebanon. The junior-aged winner was Jared Zimmerman of Lebanon.

Judge for the fit-out contest was Meranda Sellers, a dairy farmer from the area.

Blue Mold Alert Up-Date July 15, 1998

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The hard rain on July 8 followed by overcast weather on July 9 and heavy dews the remainder of the week provided weather conditions in Lancaster County that favored tobacco blue mold. During that period an abundance of spores were produced that infected many fields that previously did not have blue mold. This week many fields have very active blue mold. Blue mold is easy to see, just look for yellow spots on the top of the leaf, underneath you will find a blue gray mold growing if the infection is still viable. The mold on the underside of the leaf is easier to find in the early morning while plants are still wet.

In order for blue mold to survive it needs weather conditions which keep the leaves wet for prolonged periods and cloudy weather. Lancaster County's weather has been very favorable the past several weeks. As the number of reports increase, the number of potential sources of new infection also expands. This week has again brought additional fields with systemic blue mold. Systemic blue mold can be identified by plants on which the leaves grow crooked, the stems often fall over and often there are a great number of suckers. If you cut the stem on a systemic plant, you should find that the vascular system is turning brown. Once systemic, blue mold makes the tobacco plant unharvestable.

Blue mold cannot be cured but it can be prevented with frequent application of approved fungicides which include Dithane DF and Acrobat MZ. For best results these fungicides need to be applied before blue mold is seen; they prevent they do not cure blue mold. Fungicide applications should be made on a 5- to 7-day schedule depending on weather conditions. Good control requires complete coverage of the tobacco plant with the fungicide. As tobacco plants get larger, sprayers will need to be modified to include drop nozzles, higher pressures, and larger volume pumps in order to apply the large volumes of water required to adequately cover and protect the crop. Spray volume starts at 20 gallons per acre after transplant and increases to 60 or more gallons at topping time. This increased amount of water is needed to ensure complete coverage of the tobacco leaf with the protecting fungicide.

Russ Rooks, president of the Pennsylvania program said that dairymen want the sign at their farm to provide advertising for milk. Others use the designation to help find good employees for the farm.

Created in 1983, the Dairy of Distinction Program is designed to highlight those farms that help to create a positive image for milk. Applicants for the award are judged by committees who evaluate the farms' roadside appearance, as well as the cleanliness of the grounds and buildings.

Winners receive official 18x24 "Dairy of Distinction" signs which are mounted at the roadside for all to see. Award-winning farms are also visited annually by the judging committee to ensure that they continue to meet the standards of excellence set by the program.

Pennsylvania has 10 districts that are run by local committees with area coordinators. These coordinators are:

District 11, George Wilcox, Erie; District 12, Brett Brumbaugh, Brockway; District 13, Susan Alexander, Brockville; District 14, David & Janet Hileman, Tyrone; District 16, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert Hockenbrock, Richfield; District 17, Craig Williams, Wellsboro, District 18, Allen Roszel, Montrose; District 19, Southampton; and District 20, Russell Rooks, Allentown.

Lebanon Area Fair Set For July 25-August 1

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The organizers of the Lebanon Area Fair, one of the state's largest county fairs, have announced highlights of its 42nd event, set to be held July 25 through August 1 at the Lebanon Expo Center in Lebanon.

The Lebanon Area Fair is a volunteer effort to benefit the county 4-H and FFA youth programs.

Parking is free during the fair, though a $2 admission fee is charged per person aged 12 years and older, except on July 26 and August 1.

Youth division and open division (open to all producers, regardless of age) livestock shows are held throughout the week, and animals exhibited in shows are on display, as well as are other animals in associated educational displays — the North Mountain Petting Zoo is to be open all week and offer pony rides in the evenings.

Starting at 9 a.m., July 25 is the 4-H horse show, followed by an open division rabbit and cavy show at 10 a.m., and the poultry show at 1 p.m.

Scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. is a sale of meat pens of rabbits.

But the day has a full schedule of non-agricultural activities — the lebanon Area Fair 5-kilometer run, a volksmarch, the fair queen contest (at 5 p.m. followed by a cake sale), a four-wheel drive truck pulling contest, a modified tractor pulling contest, and an antique and classic tractor pulling contest.

Every day there is musical and magical entertainment, a Bengal tiger show, ZooAmerica presentations, and on some days there are such activities as country line dancing, karaoke, and special theme events and foods.

Livestock shows scheduled for Sunday, July 26, in a 4-H horse production show, a youth rabbit and cavy show at noon, and a 4-H dog and pet show at 4 p.m.

A swine show is scheduled for 8:30 a.m., Monday, July 27. At 9 a.m. is a dairy youth showmanship and clip-out contest, and a youth breeding sheep show at 6 p.m.

Tuesday is youth dairy day. The open and youth division dairy shows start at 8:30 a.m. for those showing Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Jerseys. The youth Holstein show begins at 9 a.m.

Later, at 7:30 p.m., is the selection of the supreme champion of all the youth dairy shows, as well as the selection of the best bred and owned dairy animal of the youth. Both selections are high honors and carry additional awards.

But Tuesday is also beef cattle day with the beef show set to be held at 2:30 p.m.

Also set for Tuesday is a sheep to shawl demonstration and a lawn and garden tractor pull.

On Wednesday, at 9 a.m. a youth tractor driving contest is scheduled, followed by a beef blocking contest at 1 p.m.

In addition to the other events and displays, a super stock tractor pulling contest is set to be held at 7:30 p.m..

On Thursday a youth dairy judging contest is scheduled to be held at 10 a.m.

Later, at 6 p.m., the youth market lamb show is scheduled, while at the same time a 4-H benefit auction is set.

On Friday, the county Holstein show is scheduled to be held starting at 9 a.m. One of the larger Holstein shows, especially for a county show, many of the area's well-known breeders exhibit some of their premier show cattle at the county show as part of their annual showing schedule.

At 9:30 a.m. is a youth livestock judging contest, and at 6 p.m. is a youth livestock auction, including the sale of champions and the presentation of special awards.

While the entertainment events and educational displays continue through to Saturday evening, the judging shows are finished with the end of the Holstein show, which usually lasts into mid-afternoon.

Of course the quality and specialness of the food is one of the aspects of the Lebanon Area Fair that continues to attract and keep attendance strong, though not crowded.

In addition to several mid-way food booths, the fair holds two special dinner sales during the week — a ham barbeque dinner is to be offered from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, July 26, for $6.50 each; a chicken barbeque dinner is to be sold from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. Thursday, July 30. The funds raised from those food sales go directly to supporting the 4-H fair.

There is also a sausage pattie sale scheduled for 5 p.m. Friday.

The $2 admission fee covers the cost of the events and activities offered by the fair. For some of the additional events held in association with the fair, but not by the fair, there are additional charges.

The truck and tractor pulling contests set to be held July 25, July 29 and July 31 cost $6 to attend. They are held at a track area at the rear of the fairgrounds that has a separate gate.

Also held there is a demolition derby held after the fair on August 1 at $8 each admission.

A track event pass is available for $30 that permits attendance at all of the track events. They can be purchased in advance at the fair managers station.

The Lebanon Area Fair is held on the Lebanon Expo grounds at Evergreen and Cornwall roads in North Cornwall Township. Directional signs are usually posted along Rt. 72, south of the city of Lebanon.

Stop by our Display at the Lebanon Area Fair July 25 to Aug. 1.

IS THIS SOMETHING I CAN LIVE WITHOUT?

Yes. But it's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

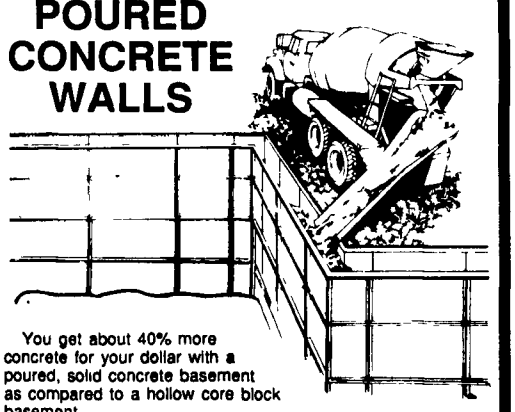
START WITH THE BEST!
POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic . there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

National Agriculture Bankers Visit Pennsylvania

Bankers meet in Rohrer's milking parlor.

national meeting of the committee was held in Southeast Pennsylvania this year.

On Saturday, an extensive tour of Lancaster County helped show the visitors from many states how agriculture works in the local area. Farm visits were made to Dwight and Cheryl Hess, Mt. Joy, and the Robert Rohrer and Sons family at Washington Boro. Lunch was served at an Amish farm home near Churchtown.

Field trip sponsors included Wenger Feeds, Kreider Dairy Farms, Chen Mushroom Farms, Hoober, Inc., James Garber and Sons, New Holland North America, Inc., Pennfield Corporation, and First Union/Corestates.

Visitors on the bus tour Saturday included Jim and Jill Atchinson and son Christopher, Wisconsin; Terry Barta and children Jerry and Jade, Kansas; George Beattie, Nebraska; John Blanchfield and Pattie Boerger, both from Washington, D.C.; Gary and Hannah Canada and married children, Gary and Angie Canada, and Joe and Nikki Steward, Arkansas; Dennis and Jan Everson and children Kim, Shanda, and Angela, South Dakota; Jesse and Kay Foster, Oregon; Van and Jan Korell, Nebraska; Marc Meyer, Iowa; Scott and Rosemary Shafer, New Mexico; David and Lisa Tribble and children Derek, and Lynette, Missouri, and Mike and Jane Walker, California.

Boyd and his wife Linda and children Brian, Cindy, and Kevin hosted the tour.

Special guests included Don Billet, tour guide; Christian Herr, deputy secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; John Schwartz, Lancaster County extension director; James Shirk, ag services manager, Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry; Ed Klimuska, writer of pictorial book on Lancaster County; Keith Baum, photographer for the book; Bill Hughes and Ted Bowers, associates at the agri-finance department at First Union/CoreStates; and Carlton Moe, Lancaster photographer.

"We wanted this to be a family affair," Boyd said. "Usually these events do not include the children, but our sponsors made it possible to include the children. We wanted to show the bankers from other areas of the country what we have in Lancaster County. These bankers have been a pleasure to work with while I have served on the national bankers ag committee."

Milk Price Makes Record

already trading at price levels near this record.

Both butter and cheese markets remain unsettled. According to the report prepared by the National Milk Producers Federation, neither buyers or sellers are comfortable with the recent price volatility that that has appeared in these markets. Historic market indicators are providing no clear signs concerning future price movements or direction in the butter and cheese cash markets.

For the first time in seven weeks, butter prices at the cash market remained unchanged. The current price level for AA butter is $.9850 per pound. With these historic price levels, imports of butterfat are finding their way into the domestic market above quota levels. According to the dairy update report distributed this week by the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange, unconfirmed reports suggest that new Zealand is one country that is preparing to ship butterfat into the domestic market.

Butter production continues to decline. For May, production was 92.2 million pounds, 10.2% below May 1997 and 10.4% below April of this year. Through May of 1998, butter production is about 9.0% below 1997 levels.

With these additional declines in butter production, marketing conditions are likely to remain tight. Increased imports are going to provide some relief, but the magnitude of the price impact is uncertain.

Income and Expenses - Article 7

Needless to say, income and expenses affect farm profits Thus, it is important for you to know your costs of production Until you know that, you can not make smart management decisions.

In addition to knowing total costs for the farm, it is very helpful to summarize your costs by categories and by enterprises With the aid of your farm records or your tax return, it is relatively easy to do.

First, break your income and expenses into several broad categories, such as:

- Dairy Income
- Non-Dairy Income
- General Dairy Costs
- Feed Purchases
- Crop Costs
- Land Costs
- Machinery Costs
- Buildings and Facilities Costs
- Labor Costs
- Miscellaneous Costs

Next, assign your income and expense items to one of the general categories listed above. For example, milk and cattle sales would be assigned to dairy income. Crop sales would be non-dairy income. Vet and medical expenses would go under general dairy costs. Fuel used in the field could go under machinery costs, whereas fuel used around the barn might be a general dairy cost. Expense items such as rent, repairs, interest, depreciation or principal payments, real-estate taxes, etc. appear under several broad categories, as illustrated in the worksheet.

Create a column for total farm income and expenses, and enter your farm totals. Some expense items, such as interest, depreciation, insurance, repairs, etc. will appear in several different categories, so you may want to allocate a portion of that expense item to several appropriate categories For example, half of the farm rent might go under buildings and facilities and the other half might be assigned to land costs Depending on how detailed your records are, you might have to make a guess as to what allocation might be appropriate for your farm. Don't let that hinder you from doing it. Even though it won't be perfect, it will still be a useful guide, and a whole lot better than nothing.

Off to the right of the column for farm totals, create additional columns for enterprises, such as those listed below Then, allocate a portion of the total farm income and expenses, which you have just entered above, to each enterprise, as appropriate Here again, some more guess work might be needed

- Average per cwt milk
- Cows
- Replacements (heifers)
- Corn (silage and grain)
- Hay
- Pasture

Then, calculate the totals and averages for each of the enterprises, and for each category of expense. Now, you can also calculate cost per cwt. of milk shipped, cost per cow, cost per replacement, cost per acre, cost per ton, cowt per bushel, etc. You now have some very valuable management information.

You also have a detailed record of your itemized costs of production. With this cost breakdown you can identify where costs and productions are out of line with your goals. You can decide if it is more economical to raise feed or buy it, to do all of your own field work or hire someone to do some of it for you, to raise replacements vs. contracting them out for someone else to raise or purchasing them, etc

SUMMER BORER APPLICATIONS Peachtree borer has been flying for over a month in Biglerville and pose a significant risk, particularly to peach and nectarine less than three years old Trunk sprays of Asana XL (2 to 4 fl oz per 100 gal, 14 day PHI), endosulfan (1 5 lb of 50W or 1 5 qt of 3E per 100 gal, 21 to 30 day PHI), or Lorsban 4E (1 5 to 3 quarts per 100 gal, 14 day PHI) during the summer give excellent control Lorsban 4E may only be applied once per year and must not contact the fruit Two applications of the other products may be necessary to cover the flight period Treatment should be applied as a course low pressure spray and wet all bark areas from the ground level to the scaffold limbs A post-harvest application may be necessary on early-maturing cultivars

Dogwood borer applications should also be considered at this time Lorsban 4E is recommended at 3 lb per 100 gal to the burr knot areas of infested trees

POTATO LEAFHOPPER ALERT Dr Bill Lamp of University of Maryland reports that potato leafhopper has been reproducing in alternate hosts and could continue to invade apple Watch apples and "porch lights" for leafhopper activity

WESTERN FLOWER THRIPS UPDATE Thrips population in white clover in Biglerville are predominately western flower thrips and are at relatively high levels for this time of the season Watch the earliest maturing cultivars for silvering injury Sampling procedures for this thrips are detailed on pages 116 and 117 of the TFPG. DuPont has renewed the 24C label for the use of Lannate 90SP in nectarine in Pennsylvania

FARM FORUM

ried last fall, slim and trim then, now may have to bend forward to kiss their young husbands good-bye as he dashes off to work. Amish carpenter crews in pickup trucks loaded with their trade tools cruise into the local Turkey Hill for a brace of coffee and donuts and off towards Philly or Baltimore or Paoli or Harrisburg to build houses or barns. Little did they know this proved to be a bad influence for some.

At the welding shops and woodworking shops Amish men and boys greeted others with a...

Gota moria, vee bisht do?

"Good morning, how are you?"

All over the Pequea (Amish word for our Lancaster settlement, named after the Pequea Creek) the work day had begun, no one even had dreamed what would take place.

It came about 8 a.m., a brace of FBI agents, probably assembeled in the City of Brotherly Love at an early hour, received their orders. Sipping coffee, they slipped west on 202 or 76 or route 30, like a coon snitching sweetcorn they picked up their charges at gunpoint, in the name of the United States of America to preserve the law and the constitution, handcuffs snapped on, and one by one the lawbreakers were picked up and the ordeal had begun.

One Amish youngster saw it happen as one of the Pagans was nabbed. He noticed several cars parked at this Englishman's (Amishman's word for non-Amish) residence and a man lying in the yard. The Amish youth left his farm work, dashed to the scene, thinking there had been an accident. The gun-toting FBI quickly shooed the boy back. The curious lad watched from a safe distance as the culprit was handcuffed and loaded in the paddy wagon.

It seemed so brash for the 3 Amish families to have their sons indicted by the FBI. No doubt whole families were in tears as the news broke out. Probably these parents had pleaded with their offspring many times to travel with more conservative friends. The one family only had 2 boys, both adopted, the other families both had the traditional half dozen children.

Sie hen unsa bova veck ganuma.

"They hauled off our boys."

In Amish jargon, any youth from age 16 till marriage (which can be at age 21 to 30) is called a boy, after marriage then he is called a man.

The day wore on, cows grazed in the meadows, many farmers mowing alfalfa, horse their neighbors and saying.

Des is shlim.

"This is bad."

In the metal shops, machines stopped, welders laid their helmets aside to discuss the sad news.

We all asked ourselves, vas vor letz, what went wrong? How could this happen in our peaceloving church, insulated, but apparently not enough from the outside. I'll make an attempt to explain.

We've always had contact with the outside, selling our wheat, tobacco, milk, eggs, to fellow Americans over 200 years. Up to about 1960 farm work kept us busy. If an Amish boy got one Friday night off per month he was lucky. Maybe a week or so off after harvest was a rare happening. For 12 hours a day, 6 days a week farm work kept our noses to the grindstone and kept us out of most mischief.

And there was growth from 1945 to 1970. Our Lancaster County Amish population doubled and again from 1970 to 1995. Today there are 23,000 Amish in our Lancaster settlement, and 2,200 youth in 25 different groups. Farms got scarce, though 20 percent moved to other settlements, it was hard for fathers to buy farms for all their sons, thus the shop area began. By 1980 25 percent of us were in manufacturing and construction. Today over 50 percent don't work in agriculture...

...thus for better or worse there was much more contact with the outside, and this all takes transportation, thus lots of outsiders have a taxi or trucking business catering to us Amish, probably over 150 in the county, hauling our goods, taxiing folks to yonder settlements, again making outside contacts easier.

Ga ruff ein driver uff.

"Go call a driver."

While Amish shops need to have their employees trucked in and out, and many use their horse and buggy, construction crews need drivers, probably more so than a hammer, many a carpenter will hire almost a total stranger. This may or may not work the best and sometimes be a contact with the drug problem.

Hot des youst afunga?

"Did this just start?"

No, it surfaced in the settlement perhaps 25 years back, during the hippie era. One Honey Brook family was involved. It appears as our outside contact increased, one heard more about drug use; by 1985 more was heard about it. Probably 25-40 involved. Only in the last 7 years it seemed to intensify, and it appears there were Amish dealers for 2-4 years. Quite alarming really.

Sin see all schlect?

"Are they all bad?"

No, no, not by any means. Today in our Lancaster settlement there are over 2,200 youth in 25 youth groups, probably only 10 percent (and these are the most talked and written about) travel in the fast lane and are exposed to drugs. An estimate, probably over 3 percent used drugs, but that's 3 percent too many.

Now take note, these 3 boys had good Christian Amish parents, were raised in Amish homes, attended the Amish church, but are not members. Hopefully, someday they will join the faith. How many leave the faith? Probably ½ percent a year, though during church divisions like in 1966 and 1911 and 1878, many families left then too.

And about these hoedowns — though forbidden, they do happen. Again only about 25 percent of the youth attend, usually on a farm where the parents are away, the word gets out, and the youth flock together, no concerned Amish parents with proper concern for their children will permit their offspring to attend. We love our children. They are the only things on this earth we hope to take along to heaven; through them the church will grow. Their spirit and muscle can do a lot of work but also children are children; if they don't obey, parents still need them, so some of this un-Amish behavior isn't wanted but tolerated like the problems in our Washington, no American likes it but we tolerate it.

Vas kenna ma do?

"What can we do?"

Pray and pray and more prayer. Live a good example. There are lots of concerned Amish parents out there. Last October a drug warning paper was written by several concerned Amish families and circulated among the bishops and church districts. Was quite touching to hear old grey-haired bishops read the letter in English after the regular church service. Sadly, not all bishops read the paper but distributed the papers to their church folk. Without a doubt, every Amish family got one.

All proper Amish parents are close to their children, keep close tabs on their whereabouts and expect them to join the faith. Since we practice believer's baptism and each must be persuaded in his own mind, girls join at age 16-18, boys age 20-22. And during this time some have more liberties than others, or more correct take more liberties, against their parents' wishes.

Isn't that the way teenage life is in most of outside America? Some kids are more restricted, their parents care more, pray more, and some kids have more liberties, faster cars and can stay out late. So it is among us Amish; we're just human, our church is not perfect. We sincerely regret all this adverse publicity; and hope it can be forgiven. Pray for us, all you God-fearing folks. Pray for us that we can maintain our way of life.

We love America; it buys our products, its laws let us live our lifestyle and religion. America provides roads, hospitals, lawmakers. We've lived in its lands for 280 years. Why this sinful happening in our society we wish we knew, but then isn't all society changing? After all this fuss about the Lambert murder case the past 4 years and still not settled, now this Amish drug dealing story's in the papers.

And there's that hee-hawing among the Washington donkeys right now. Goodness, hope it's soon resolved properly. Let's hope it's possible to get this country back on track. Let's get back to some honest Abe Lincoln politics again.

The question often comes: What is Amish? A church of caring and sharing, designed to maintain the old Christian standards, believer's baptism, holy communion, shunning, no outside marriages, and a firm belief in life hereafter. We pay taxes, some vote, rest of us may be armchair Republicans. There's about 119 church districts in our Lancaster settlement, most of us spend 30 percent of our time in helping each other.

Just to illustrate, suppose the Philly Inquirer press would suffer a disastrous fire some night. Next morn, the New York Times, Baltimore Sun, Washington Post, and let's hope our Lancaster Newspapers would dispatch men to get the debris cleaned up, and food. At the same time an effort would be made to print the Inquirer elsewhere and continue circulation. The Times and the Sun and the Post reporters would gather pictures and stories to keep the Philly news flowing. That's in effect how our Amish system works.

A big thanks to the news media for portraying this happening in an accurate light, but then again many writers and camera bugs roam the countryside poking their zoom lens into our lifestyle hoping for another best seller Amish book.

And the tourists (over 4 million tour here yearly), thicker than summer flies, and in some ways a blessing as about 30 percnt of us depend on the tourist trade for a living. Quilt and craft shops, bake shops, market business, etc. All cater to the tourists. We don't like the publicity but tolerate it.

And of course at times the news media exploits the word "Amish". It's always Amish buggy hit on route 340, Amish man's barn burns, Amish man injured in accident. You never see Catholic youth caught speeding, Presbyterian man's barn burns, Methodist woman hit on route 30. Maybe we could ask for some consideration on this part.

Now, now, Dave Letterman, that wasn't nice, that apple butter joke. Next time you get to Lancaster County, stop in We'll serve fresh apple butter ¼" thick on fresh homemade bread. No doubt then you'll have more respect for apple butter.

Thanks to the FBI for quietly making the arrests and not disturbing our busy folks cutting hay.

Thanks for working with the 3 boys to encourage them to help the system and perhaps some good will come out of this. Hopefully our boys will now know this is a federal crime and can have serious consequences. And we forgive those of the world who transgress against us. In that spirit we ask to be forgiven for this happening

By now we see this was a national news item. In fact, a worldwide news item. A sad happening in our Amish church. Again we ask all believers to pray for us. We are likewise minded.

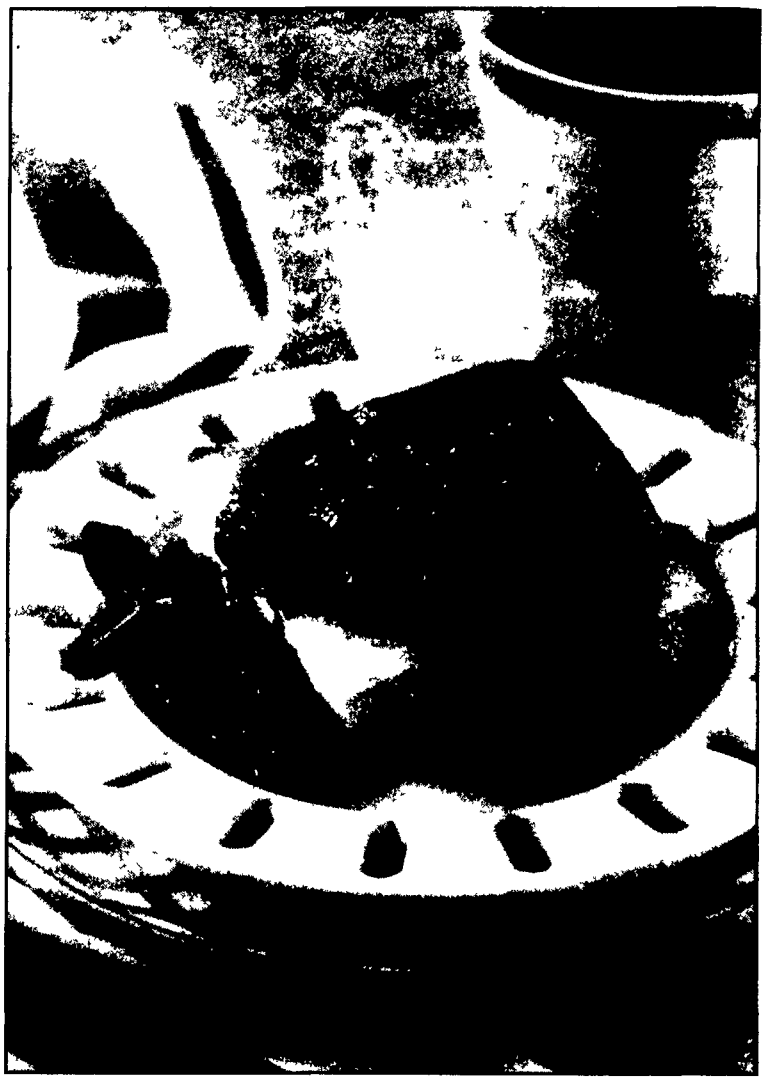
Although berries can be cooked, baked, canned, and frozen, it's hard to beat fresh berries served simply as a topping on cereal, cake, or ice cream.



Combine berries—red raspberries, black raspberries, and blue berries make a tasty trio on top of custard.

Sullivan County Dairy Princess Jill Broschart said, "You scream. I scream. We all scream for July is National Ice Cream Month."

According to Jill, ice cream is a dessert so popular here in the United States that it has been given its own month in which to celebrate it.

Former President Ronald Reagan was the individual who declared July National Ice Cream Month, and National Ice Cream Day to be the second Sunday in July.

The United States is the highest in ice cream production and consumption than any other country. What is America's favorite flavor? Vanilla, of course, followed by chocolate. Both are classics in their own right.

Now to celebrate America's favorite, here are some easy-to-create ice cream sundae ideas for your eating enjoyment.

MINT MADNESS SUNDAE: Chocolate mint ice cream, chocolate sauce, quartered chocolate-covered peppermint patties, and whipped cream.

MAPLE NUT SUNDAE: Vanilla and maple walnut ice creams, maple syrup, chopped toasted walnuts, and whipped cream.

GO BANANAS SUNDAE: A scoop of vanilla ice cream on top of a slice of banana-nut bread, topped with warm chocolate sauce, sliced bananas, and toasted pecans.

BUTTER-NUT SUNDAE: Butter pecan ice cream, butterscotch sauce, toasted pecans, and whipped cream.

Natural Enemies on Vegetables

Predatory insects like lady beetles, true bugs, and lacewings, are common in most agricultural and garden habitats in July. As beneficial insects, their presence signifies natural biological controls are occurring. Look for them on all types of garden vegetables and flowers.

Several natural enemies feed on common vegetable pests. The lady beetle (adult and larvae) prey on cabbage aphids, mites, small insects and insect eggs. Lacewings prefer aphids, insect eggs and small larvae. Lacewings also feed on nectar as aphid honeydew.

Gardeners can reduce injury to beneficial insects by (1) avoiding the use of insecticides (2) by selectively using insecticides that are less harmful to beneficial insects and (3) planting a variety of vegetable crops. Practicing all three things creates a more favorable habitat for beneficial insects to remain in the garden permanently. Moisture and an adequate pest population helps too

Green lacewings are generalists but have a particular liking to aphids. You'll find these pale green insects on sweet corn, potato, cole crops, tomato, peppers, eggplant, asparagus, and leafy greens. Developing lacewings larvae eat up to 600 aphids each throughout the summer

Lady Beetles feed on aphids and other insects on potatoes, peas, sweet corn, cole crops, and tomato. Over 450 species are found in North America. The convergent lady beetle is one-quarter inch long with orange wings covers and six small spots on each wing. The number of spots can vary. Some adults have no spots on their wing covers

Lady beetle larvae are dark, alligator-like insects with three pair of prominent legs. They are easily mistaken for a pest on vegetables. Releasing large numbers may minimize aphid damage on crops. Handle the beetles carefully and distribute them at the base of the plant rather than broadcasting them over the top of the crop.

Females of the convergent lady beetle lay clusters of 10-20 yellowish-orange eggs on plants infested with aphids. Lady beetles prefer high humidity days and shelter for protection from adverse weather. They overwinter and hibernate as adults You'll see them at the base of trees or along buildings Overwintering adults should not be disturbed. They are vulnerable to attack by other predators and parasitodes.

Lady beetles and other beneficial insects and nematodes are available at insectaries. Many insects require a special diet to prevent them from migrating our of your garden Keep them well fed all summer long.

The Early Girls weren't But the Big Girls might be

Either way, the garden has not yet yielded up one single ripe tomato

Despite the slow and sometimes stilted start of our garden, July's magic wands of heat and moisture have waved across the veggie patch to wreak a transformation

A series of circumstances involving of family house guests, day trips, and overnight business meetings combined recently to divert my attention from any thought of vegetable cultivation to more pressing issues Like cuddling precious grandsons

Knowing that stretch of the calendar would offer more important things than "piddling" around the patch, I had it planted, mulched, and weeded as much as possible well ahead As was the season, though, the garden was horrendously late getting planted to begin with, due to the springs which opened in the adjoining field with the plentiful ground water supplies

Tomato plants started in the greenhouse in late March were aging rapidly in mid-May, while alternately drowning and drying out at their semi-shaded, hardening-off spot on the patio I like to start my own tomato plants, especially certain varieties that I've never seen for sale anywhere as seedlings, then supplement them from our local garden centers Usually, even that isn't necessary, since my Mom inevitably will have more than she can use and is overwhelmingly generous in sharing anything she has with her family

With spring's delay in planting, the tomato seedlings looked so pathetic in mid-May that I finally tucked them into a temporary home in the flower border Transplanting tomatoes generally makes them sprout new roots and become more vigorous I hoped it would work on these poor babies

By the time our low-lying garden finally dried enough to cultivate, my envy was deep for other gardens already sporting vigorous onions, foot-high peas and lacy carrot foliage In a two-day frenzy, the garden was planted, mulched and marked Reuse of a couple of very large pieces of heavy bunker-silo plastic cover with planting holes still usable from last year greatly hastened the process Finally, a home for the frustrated tomato plants.

Only one tomato crop failure has ever blighted my record and I have a culprit on which to blame it the manure pile our son constructed in the garden the intensely-snowy winter he was home following college With nowhere to move boxstall manure on a daily basis due to heavy snow cover, the garden next to the field road sported an awesome bedding manure stockpile by spring. Only one spot in the garden suffered any after effect, a small stretch of tomato row where some acidic liquid from the pile had puddled during the storage Those plants didn't die, but threatened to all summer, and bore little fruit.

Mr record is now further tomato blighted For some reason, perhaps the harsh weather treatment of the seedlings and the lateness with which they were finally planted into the ground, about half of them died Nearly a total loss was an experimental hybrid, named Olympic, a freebie sent a few years ago with a seed mail order There may be one stalk that survived, likely reason I've never seen this variety offered anywhere

Faring better were my Heinz canning variety and a few of the Early Girls The Long Keepers never made it to the re-transplant stage Luckily there were more than enough of some of the hardier varieties to replace the losers And the garden itself supplied the healthiest of all tomato stalks, several volunteers happily poking up in spots from the asparagus patch to the raspberries They joined the pack

I broke down and purchased a few more Early Girls and some big sister Big Girls. Friend Ann shipped me some"stone" tomato plants, a meaty-type we anxiously await to try. And Mom, predictably, donated her extra Rutgers, more than I needed with the overflow further donated to the neighbors.

First moment I had last weekend found me fleeing to the garden, to be greeted by some lovely, green Early Girl fruits We should be picking a fresh tomato or two within the week

Once I find them among the weeds.

Cornfield In Shape Of Noah's Ark Opens

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — The next frontier of family fun entertainment is coming back to Paradise. The Amazing Maize Maze™ returned to Cherry-Crest Farm for the third year in a row and opened its stalks to the world on Friday, July 17 at 10 a.m. The day featured the 2nd Annual Fellowship Challenge, a chance for non-profit organizations to win money to fund education or family assistance programs.

The 4.77-acre cornfield maze is entitled Catch the Rainbow. The maze is cut in the shape of Noah's Ark and boasts more than 27,000 marigolds and petunias, which form a 1000-foot rainbow.

Cherry-Crest Farm is located east of Lancaster, at 150 Cherry Hill Road, Paradise. The maze will be open to the public until Saturday October 10. Maze hours are 10 a.m. to dusk — Tuesday through Saturday in July and August and Friday and Saturday only starting September 8. Admission prices are $7 for adults 12 and over; $4 for ages 6 to 11; and free for kids 5 and under.

"The maze enables us to combine agriculture, tourism, and the universal desire to have a good time," said Jack Coleman, owner of Cherry-Crest Farm. "We are proud to present this original art form on our land and pleased that we can support a worthy cause by participating in the Fellowship Challenge."

The Amazing Maize Maze™ is much more than just a labyrinth. The journey through the cornfield includes music, a script and interactive audience activities. Children may attack it like a 3-D Nintendo, seniors enjoy a walk through yesteryear, corporate executives come to develop team building or problem solving skill and everyone else comes for a good time. Winners are scored by a formula that considers how long it takes to assemble a map of the maze, find the hidden questions, and of course, find the exit.

Since 1993, the Amazing Maize Maze™ has been getting thousands of people lost across the United States. The company's first cornfield maze made it into the Guinness Book of World Records. This summer there will be six Amazing Maize Mazes in the United States, encompassing over 25 acres of cornfields.

The maze at Cherry-Crest Farm is the longest running Amazing Maize Maze and the most successful. Last year, 40,000 people came to Cherry-Crest Farm to experience this new form of agratainment. Besides the maze, Cherry-Crest Farm offers much to do, including a petting farm, a picnic area, a wagon ride, and an educational tour of their Dairy Farm.

Dairy Farming By Choice, Not Birth

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A dairy princess who isn't from the farm?

Audra Wood is one of at least four county dairy princesses crowned recently who doesn't live on a farm.

"Requirements have been broadened in recent years. Although a prospective dairy princess does not need to come from a dairy farm, they do need to have some ties to the industry," said Arlene Wilbur, assistant director for Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Promotion Services (PDPPS).

Wilbur recognizes that dairy princesses aren't necessarily competent spokespersons for the industry just because they grew up on a dairy farm.

Capable dairy princesses are those who understand the importance of including dairy products in the diet, someone who can speak easily to the public, someone who has a high regard for dairy farmers, and someone who sincerely wants to promote the dairy industry for the betterment of dairy farmers and for the consumer.

In 1956, the first young woman was chosen as the official representative and spokesperson for all dairy farmers. Forty-two years later, the program has grown and changed. Sponsorship of the program has varied over the years, but in 1983, PDPPS was established in order to provide a more uniform program to serve all areas of Pennsylvania equally.

Although contestants no longer need to come from a dairy farm, the contestant or a parent must be employed in the dairy industry or an agri-business that serves it. She must be single and be between the ages of 16 and 24. She must possess the knowledge, poise, and speaking ability necessary to carry out the duties as a spokesperson for the industy.

Audra is a 17-year-old who fits those qualifications. She did not grow up on a dairy farm, but she is milking cows.

Because Audra considers herself a real outdoor person who didn't want to work in a restaurant, she jumped at the opportunity to work at Red Knob Farm, where she feeds calves and helps milk the 380-head herd.

Audra confesses that she wasn't much of a milk drinker before she became interested in the dairy princess program.

She said, "Like every other teen, I grabbed a soda before milk."

But when she read nutrition literature, Audra recognized the need to include more dairy products in her diet.

Now her favorite drink is milk flavored with vanilla, hot fudge sauce, or strawberry syrup.

The best, she said, is to add 2 tablespoons orange juice to milk, blend in banana, ice, and a sprinkle of nutmeg.

"I think the most important food group to promote is dairy. And the most important age group to target is my friends," Audra said.

By friends, she means teenagers.

"Our bones aren't finished growing. And I realize how important it is to have enough calcium for strong bones," she said.

It wasn't until the state Farm Show in January that Audra heard about the dairy princess program.

"A woman gave me a booklet about the program. Right away, I knew this was for me," Audra said. As soon as she returned home, Audra told her mom, "I'm going to become a dairy princess."

Of course, she had to prepare a skit, give a speech, and compete in the Lancaster County pageant to achieve the crown.

Audra wasn't disappointed. She said of the promotional responsibilities, "This is so real. It's so down to earth. I'm so proud to be promoting the industry. It's such an honor."

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Audra Wood doesn't need to do any milk promoting in the family. She said her 6-year-old brother drinks two quarts of milk daily. Her mother Barbara Wharton likes cooking with dairy products.

Audra also has other agricultural interests. She is an FFA member and a senior at Solanco High School. She raises two red Duroc hogs for an FFA project. Although a late joiner of the FFA, Audra said that she is trying to make up for lost time by participating in as many projects as possible. Audra is an FFA reporter and enjoys the FFA officer meetings throughout the summer.

Although her main focus at school is FFA involvement, Audra also enjoys participating in mock trials in which schools reenact trials and compete against each other.

This past year, she served as the prosecuting attorney. She had to try out for the position, think up the questions to ask, and come up with opening and closing statements.

Talking comes easily to her. Audra suspects her ease in communication comes from her mom and great grandfather.

Audra lives with her mother, Barbara Wharton, and a six-year-old brother, Robert, near Quarryville.

"He's my sidekick and goes everywhere I go," Audra said of her brother. She's also proud that he drinks two quarts of milk everyday.

A sister Abby, 13, lives in Delaware.

When her dad left the family, it was difficult for Audra to adjust. On the positive side, Audra said the experience has forced her to take on more responsibility because her mom has her own wallpapering and painting business.

"My mother is a hard worker and very responsible. She's very supportive of me, although we don't have a lot of time together," Audra said.

At the Union Presbyterian Church near her home, Audra serves on the pulpit committee and is active in the youth group.

Following graduation, Audra definitely plans on college, probably Penn State. She'd like to travel west to Montana and then settle in the Lancaster County area.

At least three other county dairy princesses have a non-farm background, but have related ties to agriculture. One has a father who is a milk hauler, another's father is a DHIA technician, and another one's dad works for Sire Power.

While the farming bluebloods might fear that dairy promotion is at a disadvantage if it is being represented by those with a non-dairy background, Wilbur, as coordinator, points out that several board members and employees of dairy associations are not from farms either.

Audra confesses that she wasn't much of a milk drinker before she started reading nutrition literature handed out by dairy companies. "Like every other teen, I grabbed a soda before milk," she said. But that's a thing of the past. Now Audra prefers milk drinks and is a firm believer that her age group needs to be convinced of imminent health dangers from not consuming enough calcium in their diet.

Wilbur said, "I think it's a benefit to the farmer to have those from a non-farming background. We need people out there who support the dairy farmer. The greater the number, the more apt we are to preserve agriculture."

Wilbur said the controversy among the non-farming public is whether or not they should use dairy products.

County dairy princesses receive extensive training on how to address those issues.

"We are not out there promoting just for the sake of promoting. We believe we are reaching consumers with a message that is in their best interests," Wilbur said.

"Why turn anyone away who sincerely sees the benefits of the dairy industry? Why not encourage them to become supporters of the dairy industry?" she asked.

"We need more understanding and more respect for the dairy industry. We need well-informed people about agriculture issues and this (the dairy princess program) is a good avenue (for education).

"Agriculture is what Lancaster County is made of," Audra said. "It's a heritage I want to continue. My grandparents and great grandparents grew up on the farm.

"I definitely want farming to be part of my future forever and live on a farm," she said.

In the meantime, Audra said that she has a tremendous love for agriculture and plans on doing a "knock 'em out" job in promoting the dairy industry.

As an outdoor person, Audra enjoys maintaining perennial flower beds at her home. Although she isn't from the farm, she has a job milking dairy cows and feeding calves at Red Knob Farm, about five miles from her home.

MARSHA ANN CHESS
Mercer Co. Correspondent

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — Seventeen-year-old Tamella Menke achieved a life-long dream when she was named Mercer County Dairy Princess at the pageant, which was held in the Leslie N. Firth Learning Center, Mercer, June 30.

Tamella is the daughter of Ted and Rosemary Menke of Greenville and will be a senior at Reynold Junior/Senior High School this fall. She is active in 4-H and is a member of the Country Milkers dairy club and the veterinary science club and is president of County Council. She is in National Honor Society, Key Club, Concert Choir, and German and Latin clubs, track and field and the Reynolds Varsity "R" Club. She also belongs to the Jersey and Holstein breed associations.

Tammy plans to attend Penn State University and major in dairy and animal science after high school.

Tammy's skit "Dairy Day at Farmer Bill Academy" depicted a farmer visiting an elementary school class and introducing the students to a calf and milk. Her speech "Changes" talked about changes in the dairy industry.

Alternates Terra Ferris and Elizabeth Voorhies with Dairy Maids Katie Hanna, Kimberly Voorhies, Emily Davis, and Melissa Hanna will help promote dairy products in Mercer County.

Terra is the 18-year-old daughter of Frank and Rosalie Ferris, New Wilmington. She is a 1998 graduate of Wilmington Area High school where she was active in FFA, Key Club, and chorus. She served as a track statistician and assisted with the Kiwanis book sale and pancake breakfast. Terra plans to work on her family farm and work with 4-H and FFA members.

Terra dressed up as a football player and told third graders how milk could help them grow up big and strong in her skit, "Three Times a Charm."

The 23-year-old daughter of Gerald and Susan Voorhies, Stoneboro, Elizabeth will be a senior at Edinboro University this fall where she is majoring in elementary and early childhood education. She is a member of Alpha Phi Omega, a national co-ed service fraternity and was a nine-year member of No-Bull 4-H dairy club. Elizabeth is employed at the London, Pa. McDonald's and Eat'n'Park this summer.

Elizabeth presented a speech on lactose intolerance called "Got Milk" and a skit "Where Does Milk Come From?"

Katie, 15, and Melissa Hanna, 13, are the daughters of Clayton and Cindy Hanna, Stoneboro. Katie presented "Friends" in which she talked about how her imaginary friend helped her discover the benefits of eating dairy. Melissa cheered for dairy foods in "Melissa the Moo."

Kimberly Voorhies is 16 and performed a skit called "Little Miss Muffet Learns About Dairy." In it the spider teaches her that milk, cheese, and ice cream are really good for her.

Thirteen-year-old Emily Davis is the daughter of Chuck and Cindy Davis of Mercer. Emily excitedly told the audience what she learned about dairy products at school in her skit "A Day at School."

The Dairy Delights ages 5 to 10 years, will help the royalty promote milk as well. They are Sarah Snyder, 10, of Greenville; Erica Montgomery, 9, Grove City; Summer Paxton, 8, Grove City; Laura Sturgin, 6, Fredonia; Laural Montgomery, 7, Grove City, Karen Siege, 7 and Jill Siege, 5, Greenville. The Dairy Darlings sang "The Cows are in the Barn" for the audience.

Mercer County Dairy Princess Tammy Menke realizes a dream as she poses for pictures during her first official duty.

Mistress of Ceremonies for the evening was Susan DeLeo, a news reporter for WFMJ TV 21 in Youngstown, Ohio. The pageant made the news and local farmers were able to see the new dairy princess on the 11 p.m. news June 30 and noon news July 1.

The entire world is at peace and there are no wars about to break out, Congress has just passed a new amendment to the constitution, as a newly elected president you can change one thing in the country, except the price of milk, without having to receive approval from anyone, what would that one thing be and why?" with poise.

Assisting the dairy royalty will be Flower Girls Rachael Elizabeth Irwin, 8, of Linesville and Alexis Rose Caldwell, 6, of Saegertown. Rachael enjoys promoting milk so much that she made her own "Future Dairy Princess" Banner.

Farm Safety 4-Just Kids Begins In Maryland

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

JEFFERSON, Md – A national farm safety organization has its first chapter in Maryland, thanks to the efforts of a Frederick County woman Jane Smith, of Jefferson, announced the official start of the Frederick County Farm Bureau chapter of Farm Safety 4 Just Kids at the annual Frederick County farm safety camp, held at the 4-H Camp Center Smith is the representative for the chapter

An internationally recognized organization, Farm Safety 4 Just Kids was started in Iowa in 1987 by Marilyn Adams after she lost her son in a tragic accident in a gravity flow wagon of corn The organization has grown since that time until it now has more than 3000 members, and 79 chapters around the country The mission of the non-profit organization is to prevent farm-related childhood injuries, health risks, and fatalities Their motto is: "Nothing raised on a farm is more valuable than children "

As chairperson of the 18-member Frederick County Farm Bureau Safety committee, Smith has had a leadership role in organizing the annual safety camp that Farm Bureau has sponsored for the last five years She has served as director of the safety camp, lined up well-respected speakers, and coordinated all the various activities that go along with the overnight youth camp and the volunteers it takes to make it run smoothly

Her care and concern for the children who live on farms, not only in her Frederick County community, but throughout the state, prompted her to look into the possibility of starting the Farm Safety 4 Just Kids chapter to further her mission Hearing about tragic local accidents and others in nearby counties involving children on farms has motivated her to crusade for family farm safety "There were no chapters in our state, this is the first one", she explained

"We have many persons we can call on to provide support to the Maryland chapter," said Smith "It seems as if the local community was really receptive to the idea of the chapter." And, indeed, the community has rallied, with 15 members already pledging their support for the chapter, including both local families and ag related businesses

The focus of the chapter will be on increasing public awareness of farm safety hazards, and providing educational opportunities To this end, they have identified four goals. First, the chapter will hold a safety camp yearly or at least every other year for the young people. Second, the members will set up displays at the county and state fairs, at Ag Week at the Mall, and at local ag businesses. They will publicize their business news articles. And finally, they will give talks and send speakers wherever they can to help set up new safety camps or chapters. Fifteen groups have already pledged donations to help the chapter achieve these goals

In fact, Smith and other members of the Frederick County Farm Bureau safety committee have already been doing some of these things They have helped Progressive Farmer magazine start their own safety program by providing them with information, and have set up displays and given talks around the area Groups from neighboring counties have started attending the Frederick County safety camp to get ideas on starting their own camps.

Anyone interested in more information or in joining the Maryland chapter of Farm Safety 4 Just Kids can contact Jane Smith at (301) 473-8259

Merhl Ramsburg, left, and Charlie Seraydian are both survivors of farm accidents. The two men joined together to give children at the farm safety camp a lession in PTO safety.

Richard Yinger, of the Frederick County Dive Team, demonstrated water safety techniques at the farm safety camp.

These children at the farm safety camp were involved in a role-playing activity designed to make them think about what it would be like to be in a wheelchair and have no use of their arms.

Charles Smith demonstrates the power of a PTO to children attending the farm safety camp recently.

Remove Grass Stains

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Most fresh grass stains can be removed simply by washing the item according to care instructions. If the stain is set or proves difficult to remove, you may need to try other treatments.

Treat the stain as soon as possible, using a commercial pretreatment product. Test the product for colorfastness by applying to an unexposed area. Let stand five minutes, then rinse. If the color is affected, don't use the product. Check the label on your laundry detergent for pre-treatment instructions. To remove any last traces of the stain, an all fabric bleach may be necessary. Remember to check for colorfastness. Bleach the entire article following the manufacturer's instructions, then launder as usual.

Sleeping bags can usually be washed, but because many contain down or fiber filling, check the care label before cleaning. Wash the article separately on a gentle cycle. Tumble dry at regular temperature. Try adding a clean tennis ball to the dryer to fluff up the filling. If the sleeping bag is too bulky for a home washing machine, dry clean professionally.

Alicea Bucher and Joanna Warners, both of Harrisburg, participated in the 10th annual 4-H Ambassador Conference held at University Park Campus recently. As ambassadors, they will represent about 125,000 4-H members in the state and speak to groups about the 4-H and extension programs. The conference, sponsored by the College of Agricultural Sciences, included workshops on interviewing skills, media relations, and decision making.

Agriculture Parade Flaunts Dairy Industry

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Followiong a threatening wind and thunderstorm the sun emerged from behind the clouds to create a perfect evening for the annual agricultural parade. The parade is held in conjunction with the Martinsburg July 4th activities.

For nearly two hours farm equipment both antique and new, clowns, bands, majorette groups, llamas, horses, pony carts, floats with various local queens and princesses, and fire trucks paraded along the street from Ritchey's Dairy to the Johnson Memorial Park.

Of great attraction was a display of tractors ranging back to 1941 and driven my members of the Southern Cove Power Reunion.

Chairmen of the parade were Calvin and Thelma Baker of Williamsburg RD 2.

Thelma and Calvin farmed for 34 years and have both been active in the community.

Calvin has served as the Huston Township Republican committeeman since 1952 and had previously assisted in the Hollidaysburg district office of State Rep. Jerry Stern. He has served as a director for Memorial Park for approximately 20 years and is a board member of the Blair County Agricultural Extension Service.

Thelma, who helped run the Baker farm, has won numerous awards for her cooking, baking, and quilting. She served six years on the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau State Ladies Committee and 16 years as majority inspector of Huston Township Election Board, She is a member of the Williamsburg Civic Club, Morrisons Cove Republican Club, and the Scotch Valley Grange and has been a member of the Morrisons Cove Home Auxiliary for the past 25 years.

Here are some of the wonderful old tractors from the Southern Cove Power Reunion.

Regional Fashion Revue Winners Ready For State Competition

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The latest fashions modeled with flair awed the audience gathered for the Capitol Region Fashion Revue held last week in Harrisburg.

After months of planning, fitting, stitching, and ripping participants from Lebanon, Lancaster, Dauphin, Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, and York counties competed at the county level where they were selected to attend the regional competition. Eight senior participants from the regional competition achieved the honor to advance to state competition, which is to be held at the Penn State Campus in Aug. These eight will compete against other regional winners across the state.

The finalists selected to represent the region at the state competition include the following:

• Jesse Murren, 17-year-old son of Terrence and Patricia Murren of New Oxford (Adams County) used his tailoring skills to stitch a sports coat, dress shirt, and corduroy pants. He used a combination of three patterns to achieve the classic look he wanted. Corduroy fabric was used for the pants, cotton for the shirt, and brown tweed wool pendelton for the jacket.

• Danielle Sanderson, daughter of Craig and Juanita Sanderson of Carlisle (Cumberland County), stepped out in style with a three-piece suilt featuring a loose-fitting, lined, below the hip jacket with fold-back facings, princess easm, flaps, and a two-piece effect sleeves with button trim. The semi-fitted lined top is sleeveless and has princess seams. Fabric chosen for the jacket and top is Frise made in Italy. The skirt is 100 percent wool. To add a couture touch, lace was attached to the edge of the skirt lining, which was a signature feature of Jacqueline Kennedy's skirts when she was first lady.

• Tanisha Seibert modeled a unique lined, velvet cape and satin gown for her tenth-year project. Tanisha redesigned a basic cape pattern by adding a scallop hemline, satin at the bottom and a neckline and an inverted back pleat. She trimmed her cape in cording that she dyed to match the fabric.

The satin gown features chiffon straps and drapes on the bodice. She also designed the special appliqueed beaded work to add sparkle to the outfit. She is the daughter of Edward and Barbara Seibert of Hershey (4-H member of Lebanon County).

• Melanie Snyder, daughter of Vickie Snyder of Halifax (Dauphin County), topped a summer princess-seamed dress with a fully-lined jacket for her winning entry. The semi-fitted navy blue linen jacket falls just above the hip and features long sleeves, extended shoulders, and a notched collar. The fitted vertical striped dress in navy, beige, and white linen features an invisible back zipper and a kick pleat.

• Tanya Aument, daughter of Thomas and Donna Aument of Quarryville (Lancaster County), stitched a three-piece outfit of navy pin-stripped gabardine. The jacket topped a blouse with short kimono sleeves and pull-on pants with elastic casing and side seam pockets.

• Holly Hoover, daughter of Marty and Lois Hoover of Ephrata (Lancaster County), modeled a polyester challis dress. The long sleeved dress has a navy blue background with off white flowers accented with an off-white collar.

• Carrie Singleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Singleton of Leola (Lancaster County), stitched a formal gown of satin and organza. The lined gown has a close fitting bodice with a raised waist, a slightly flared skirt and a button loop closing at the back. The solid light pink polyester satin had a sheer overlay and scarf from polyester organza.

Two alternates were also selected as substitutes in case the a gold ribbon winner cannot attend the competition. These are Katie Ranck, daughter of Ronald and Bonita Ranck of Leola (Lancaster County), and Jackie Shaw, daughter of James and Patricia Shaw of Spring Grove (York County).

In addition to the alternates, other blue ribbon winners in the senior division included Heather Frost, Cumberland County; Meghan Bishop, Adams County; and Elisa Ranck, Lancaster County.

Junior 4-H members also compete at the regional competition but do not advance to state competition. Junior gold ribbon winners, which are the highest award given include the following: Linsey Fackler, Dauphin County; Melissa Graeff, Lebanon County; Matthew Richard, Franklin County; Madline Snyder, Dauphin County; and Emily Grieggs, Dauphin County.

Junior blue ribbon winners include the following: Cara Hershey, Lancaster County; Lindsay Shirk, Lebanon County; Shannon Stauffer, York County; Kadie Orris, Cumberland County; and Alyson Jacques, Cumberland County.

The purpose of the 4-H Fashion Revue is to build self-confidence and poise, develop skills in planning, selecting appropriate patterns, fabric, and accessories to complement them, develop good posture, grooming, and punctuality habits, complete applications clearly, and submit them on time, acquire knowledge and skills in planning, presenting, and participating in competitions.

Senior Division gold ribbon winners will advance to state competition include Tanisha Seibert, Carrie Singleton, Danielle Sanderson, Melanie Snyder, Tanya Aument, Kandance Baum, Holly Hoover, and Jesse Murren.

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — The Mercer County Lamb and Wool Growers Association held its annual Shepherd's night, June 25, at the Mercer County 4-H Park and Extension Center, Mercer. The activities included a lamb dinner, crowning the lamb and wool queen, a skillathon contest, a leadline competition, and a jackpot lamb show.

The 1998 Mercer County Lamb and Wool Queen is Cheryn L. Courtney of Mercer. Cheryn won the title at the annual meeting in April, but her crown had not arrived at that time so plans were made to crown her at Shepherd's night. Unfortunately, Cheryn was working so her mother accepted the crown and banner on her behalf.

Looking ready for school in a red and black plaid wool dress, Kara Kingsley, 6, of Volant, shows her lamb in the leadline contest during the Mercer County Shepherd's Night.

Cheryn is the 17-year-old daughter of John and Pamela Courtney. She will be a senior at Mercer High School, this fall, where she is an honor student. Her activities include showing lambs in 4-H, soccer, track, powder puff football, speech team, show choir, ecology team, SADD, equus board, and school musicals. Cheryn is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students and has received the Hugh O'Brien Youth Leadership Award.

Cheryn feels that her position as Lamb and Wool Queen is important because it allows her to educate the public and promote the sheep industry. "Some people don't even know where wool comes from," she said. "Some people know very little about farm animals."

Cheryn added, "People need to realize that shearing doesn't hurt the animal. In fact it's good for them."

Cheryn is part of the fourth generation of her family to sheep and her family is very active in the sheep industry. Her father, John Courtney is president of the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association. And her sister Camise and Aunt Ruth Ann Courtney Maxwell were both Mercer County Lamb and Wool Queens. In fact, Ruth Ann was the Pa. Lamb and Wool Queen in 1962.

Cheryn plans to go to college, but is unsure of what field of study she will pursue.

Colorado 4-H'ers Try Pennsylvanian Life

JENNY WILT
Adams County Correspondent

ABBOTTSTOWN (Adams Co.) — When the school bus arrived in front of Knouse Food's Peach Glen plant many of those aboard gave no indication that they had spent days riding in this means of transportation.

They had arrived in Adams County on July 1 from their homes in LaPlata County, Colo., and were now exploring Adams County and the surrounding area as part of a 4-H Exchange Program.

This day they had just completed a Mason-Dixon Farm tour and were about to embark on a visit to the Peach Glen plant where cherries were the fruit of the day.

Bob Weary, director of human resources for Knouse Foods, said the cherry crop was "very short" this year because of the early spring rains which made the fruit "mushy." What was harvested was now going through the line in the canning plant. The plant expects to process 6,800 tons of cherries. Most will be turned into pie filling or be water packed.

Knouse Foods Cooperative, which includes Lucky Leaf, Musselman, Apple Time, Speas Farms, and Lincoln, is the largest fresh fruit packer in the United States, according to Weary.

Weary also explained that Knouse Foods will process some three million pounds of peaches and in a year's time can process 12 million bushels of apples. There are 147 growers in the cooperative.

The visit to Knouse Foods was just one of the many area attractions the youths saw during their visit East.

They spent a day at the Civil War re-enactment held over the July 4th holiday, went to Hershey Park, Baltimore, Md., where they visited Fort McHenry, Inner Harbor, Lexington Market, and The World Trade Center Observation Level.

Before heading West and home they stopped in Washington D.C. for two days.

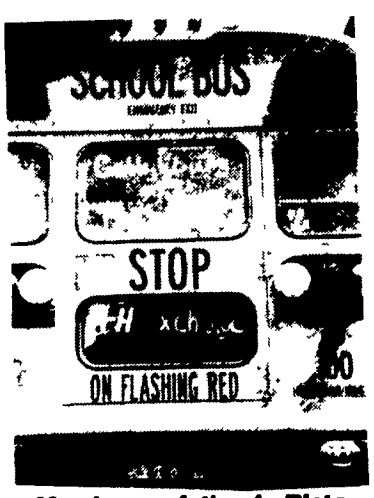
Kimberly Stevens, 15, of Abbottstown, who is a member of the Adams County 4-H Senate, and her Colorado companion, Misty Zellitti, 14, of Durango, were enjoying getting to know each other and said "It's nice to get to meet people from other areas. It's fun."

Misty also enjoyed visiting with others and said, "It's really pretty on on the East Coast, but it's definitely hot."

Misty's cousins, Tracy Zellitti, 15, Kristi Zellitti, 19, and Cynthia Zellitti, 14, all of Durango, found their experience in the East "awesome."

Cynthia summed up the three visitors' thoughts with "It's exciting and totally cool."

The goal of the 4-H Exchange Program is to provide an opportunity for 4-H teens to visit a different part of the country and experience, first hand, the lifestyles and differences in cultures.



Members of the LaPlata County, Colo., 4-H Clubs painted the window of the school bus they traveled in with a "Gettysburg or Bust" sign. The 21 youths and 10 adults visited Adams County 4-H members and their families and toured the area.

Among the 4-H members from LaPlata County, Colorado, are sisters Tracy, 15, Kristi, 19, and Cynthia Zellitti, 14. The three pulled on hairnets for a tour of Knouse Foods Peach Glen plant, where cherries were the fruit of the day.

Kitchen To Go

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — You've just finagled a month off work and rented a quiet cabin in the mountains. You think it might be fun to bake your favorite wild berry pie, but suspect the rustic kitchen may lack — to say the least — a pastry blender and measuring spoons.

How will you squeeze a well-stocked kitchen in with the clothes and sleeping bags? A home economist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences may have the solution.

The Portable Kitchen Assembly Guide describes how to pack a kitchen, from vegetable brush to wire whisk, into a package the size of a tote bag, says Jan Scholl, associate professor of agricultural and extension education.

"You might be interested in the Portable Kitchen if you're heading to a cabin this summer, or out on the road in an RV," Scholl says.

The Portable Kitchen contains more than 50 common kitchen items, packed into an 11 1/2-by-15-inch plastic dishpan. The dishpan doubles as an on-site sink. A second dishpan, which is slipped inside the first, can be filled with rinse water. "All items are standard-sized except for the cookie sheet, which is the size used in toaster ovens," says Scholl.

The four-page assembly guide comes on card stock and opens like a menu. It lists step-by-step visual instructions on how to pack the kitchen, with drawings for each item. It also includes a shopping checksheet.

To order the Portable Kitchen Assembly Guide, send a check for $1 (for printing and mailing) payable to Penn State University to Jan Scholl, 323 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802. For more information, call Jan Scholl at (814) 863-7869.

Salads To Go

It's time for summer salads "to go" — to picnics, to covered dish suppers.

It is always a challenge to plan ahead to keep food really cold until you're ready to eat. There are new devices that can help do the chilling job. For example, there are padded insulated carrying bags that hold casseroles or 9x13-inch pans with chiller units that fit the bag to keep the food cold. There are also double-walled platters and bowls that can be frozen ahead of time and then used to keep the salad chilled.

One of the important techniques to use for maximum food safety is to make sure that when you prepare a salad mixture, all the ingredients like salad dressing, celery, vegetables, pasta, tuna or other meats or whatever—are pre-chilled so that you have a chilled mixture when the recipe is complete. Chill chopped potatoes or freshly cooked pasta or rice before making the salad. If you mix warm foods together you will have a thick mixture that is very slow to cool.

Just to set the record straight—again—salad dressing and mayonnaise are not inherently perilous foods. Both contain large amounts of vinegar that make them acidy and not hospitable for bacteria by themselves. What does happen though, is that when they are mixed with lots of other protein foods, the acidity is diluted and the contamination potential is increased so it is a good idea to keep salad mixture at 40 degrees or less. If any food has been in the danger zone between 40 and 140 degrees for more than two hours you should think about discarding it. At a picnic, keep most food in the cooler until you need it. Do not return warm food to the cool food container in the cooler. Keep it separate or discard it.

It is also very important to be attentive to sanitation when you are mixing salads together. Because you have a variety of ingredients, many of which must be chopped or cut and handled, you have more opportunities for cross contamination. Be sure also to thoroughly wash fresh produce that goes into salad mixtures, chasing down any soil particles lurking in the greens. Wash your hands often—with soap. Folks have been asking about some of the waterless hand cleaners that are appearing on the market. Do read the instructions about how to use them but they are not designed for use before handling food with bare hands.

If your picnic involved raw chicken or burgers, try to have as much of the handling done before you get to the picnic so you don't have to handle raw meat with your hands—especially if there are poor hand washing facilities. Maybe this is the time to toss some disposable gloves into your picnic basket.

Be sure to segregate the raw meats or poultry from other foods that will not be cooked so there is no transfer of bacteria. Think about a separate cooler or at the very least a sealed container inside the regular cooler to keep juices confined. Don't put the cooked burgers back on the plate that held the raw burgers.

Do not use loose ice that has been a cooling agent in a chest for putting into drinks. It could have picked up bacteria. A better way would be to put the ice into several small zipper-type bags to keep it clean while it cools. Try to get the cooler chilled ahead of time so that when you put in the chilled food, the whole system will keep you at safe temperatures for longer time. Keep the cooler in the air conditioned part of the vehicle if you can.

Here's one of my favorite summer salads—"Bloody Mary Turkey Salad." It is called Bloody Mary because part of the marinade/salad dressing is made with Bloody Mary Drink mix — a spicy hot tomato juice plus red wine vinegar, balsamic vinegar, oil, herbs and garlic. It's a big hit and easy to prepare. Here's the recipe:

BLOODY MARY TURKEY SALAD

2 pounds deli-style cooked turkey breast sliced 1/4 inch thick, then into thin strips
1 1/2 cups Bloody Mary Drink Mix
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1/4 cup Balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon oregano
1/3 cup salad oil
4 cloves garlic, thin sliced
1/2 pound sliced mushrooms

Combine ingredients in 1/2 gallon zipper bag the day before and refrigerate. Turn bag several times. At serving time, arrange mixed greens, sliced carrots, radishes, cucumbers, tomato wedges, green pepper strips, hard cooked egg wedges, olives on a large tray. Place turkey with marinade in a bowl. Guest can put down green and veggies and top with turkey. Enjoy!

Hayden Is Huntingdon County's Dairy Princess

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Most people know that dairy princesses take their milk message into elementary schools where young minds can learn how important milk is to growing bodies But Sara Hayden of Huntingdon has another message that's just as important.

"I want to go into the middle and high schools. Eighty-five-percent of the girls and sixty-percent of the boys are calcium deficient. I want to tell them to drink milk before it's too late," Sara said of the statistics she found on the Internet.

Sara, the daughter of Jim and Doris Hayden, was crowned at the Huntingdon County Dairy Princess Pageant the beginning of June and has already attended arts festivals, parades, senior citizens centers and 4-H camp. But Sara will rely on her alternate dairy princess, Lillian Joy Couch of McAlevy's Ford, for dairy princess events in July. Sara's attending the Governor's School for Agricultural Sciences at Penn State.

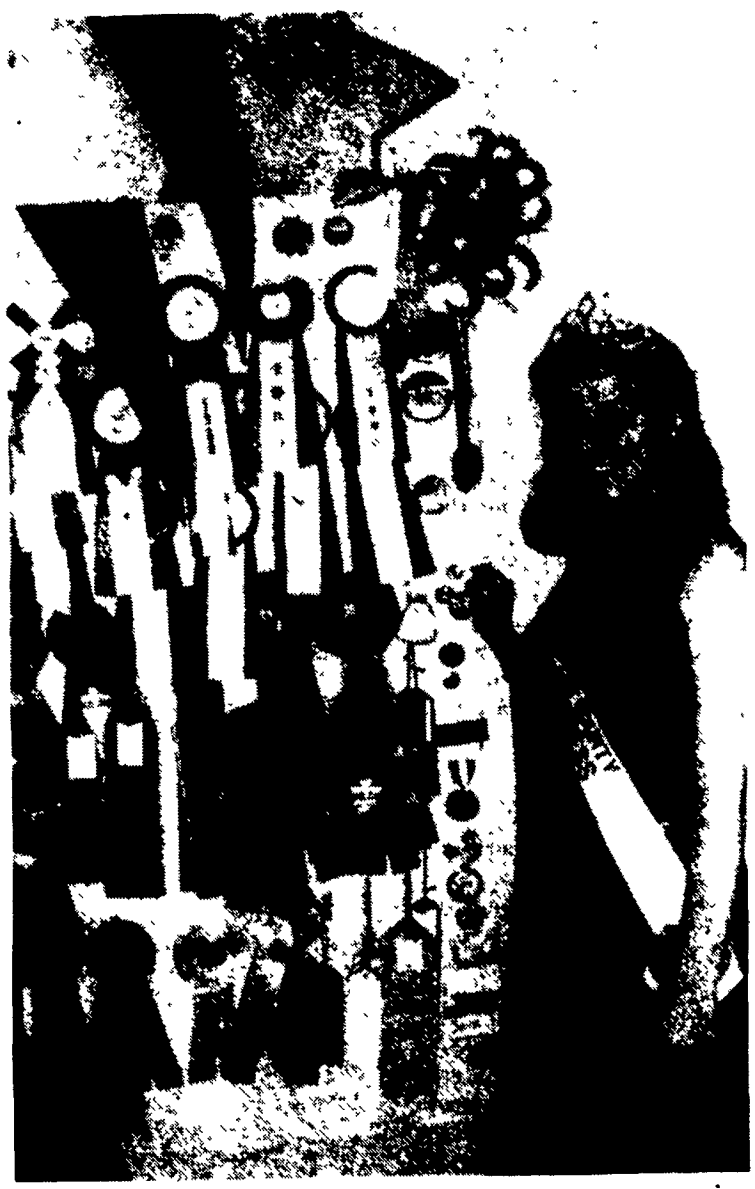
"I think I want to be a vet. At the Governor's School, we take accelerated classes, go on field trips, do hands-on activities. It'll be a good way for me to decide whether I want to attend Penn State. Out of the hundreds that apply for the Governor's School, only 64 are chosen."

Sara and her brothers J.C., 14 and Ian, 11, all show dairy animals at the Huntingdon County Fair. But they don't compete against each other. Sara shows Ayrshires, J.C. shows Jerseys, and Ian mostly shows Brown Swiss.

Sara takes a break between activities. She's been accepted at the Governor's School for Agricultural Sciences at Penn State.

Sara serves as president of the County-Wide Dairy 4-H Club, is a member of the Junior Holstein Association, the Huntingdon Dairy Bowl Team, the National Honor Society, HAHS Power Source Club, a Bible study group, County Chorus, HAHS Chamber Singers, and other organizations. She helps on her neighbor's farm by keeping lactation records and milking.

Sara will be attending the Huntingdon Area High School this fall as a senior honor student. She's not sure how her message of drinking milk will be received in the middle and high schools, but Sara's winning smile and healthy appearance will clearly show the benefits of drinking milk.



Sara Hayden displays some of her many ribbons in her room.

Princess Vows To Fight Osteoporosis

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — Billie Jo Bird was crowned Centre County Dairy Princess at a pageant held at the Logan Grange in Pleasant Gap recently.

Billie Jo is the 16-year-old daughter of Rick and Patty Bird of Pleasant Gap. She has a brother Will, 19, and sister Ashley, 12.

"I am dedicating my year as dairy princess to the promotion of dairy products to help fight and control osteoporosis. This disease affects several family members and I want to make everyone aware that consuming dairy products throughout your liefetime can help you avoid getting this disease," Billie Jo said.

The Bird farm consists of 120 acres, mostly corn and alfalfa used by the tenant dairy producer. The family-owned R.W. Bird Trucking Inc. operates about 30 tractor trailers and tankers to transport milk for several cooperatives and independent companies. The business has been operated since 1955.

"Ever since I was a little girl, I have ridden with my father and grandfater to pick up milk and I have always wanted to be a dairy princess," Billie Jo said.

She will be a junior at Bellefonte Area High School in the fall. School activities include varsity cheerleading, softball player, and working with the preschool program.

In the community, Billie Jo has volunteered at the Bellefonte YMCA, been a summer softball coach, and helped at Pleasant Gap Elementary School. She enjoys skiing, softball, cheerleading, swimming, and working with small children.

After high school, Billie Jo has her sights set on working with young children in the medical profession. She is working part-time with Penn State University's sports camp registration.

Assisting in Centre County dairy promotion is Centre County Alternate Laura Foust. Laura, 17-year-old daughter of Lois E. Foust of Milesburg and Larry Foust of Mapleton Depot. She will be a senior at Bald Eagle Area High School in the fall. Laura's interest in the dairy industry stems from her great grandfather's farm, which has been in the family for 78 years.

Dairy maids are Joleen Haines, daughter of Charles and Lori Haines of Pleasant Gap; Laura Musser, daugher of Thomas Jr. and Cindy Musser of Bellefonte, and Amanda Gates, daughter of Carl and Carla Gates of Warriors Mark.

Dairy Misses are Amanda Corl, daughter of Eugene Corl and of Rob and June Kocher; Courtney Klingler, daughter of Robert and Kimberly Klingler of Port Matilda; and Miranda Ulmer, daughter of Daniel and Penny Ulmer of Bellefonte.

Dairy Ambassadors are Nicole and Krystal Wasson, daughters of Ronald and Candace Wasson of State College; and Derek Wasson, son of Douglas and Jennifer Wasson, Centre Hall.

Former dairy princess Erica Reese gave a farewell speech and the 1996 Dairy Princess LaTrisha Wasson was recognized for being named the runner-up for the Tina M. Schultz Award.

Amber Rice provided musical entertainment and an old-fashioned ice cream social ended the evening.

Retired vocational agriculture teacher and dairy farmer John Ishler served as emcee. Judges were Joyce Dotterer, Clinton County Dairy Promotion co chair; Dave Bigelow, marketing manager for Pa. DHIA, and Abe Harpster, Ever-green Farms in Spruce Creek.

Centre County Dairy Princess Billie Jo Bird, left, is joined by, front row, Dairy Ambassador Derek Wasson, and Dairy Maids Amanda Gates and Laura Musser. Goschenhoppen Folk Festival Is 'Chust For Nice'

EAST GREENVILLE (Montgomery Co.) – This summer, take your family on a weekend trip back through time. For two days - August 7 and 8 - the past will come back to life at the 32nd annual Goschenhopen Folk Festival in East Greenville. It is the most authentic, educational and entertaining event of its kind in the country.

The Goschenhoppen Folk Festival is a leisurely family event that offers a unique and authentic re-creation of life and customs of Pennsylvania German people in the 18th and 19th centuries. Noted for their strict adherence to folk cultural authenticity, about 1000 participants of all ages, dressed in period clothing utilize historically correct materials and accouterments for only those trades and tasks that have been documented to the Goschenhoppen region.

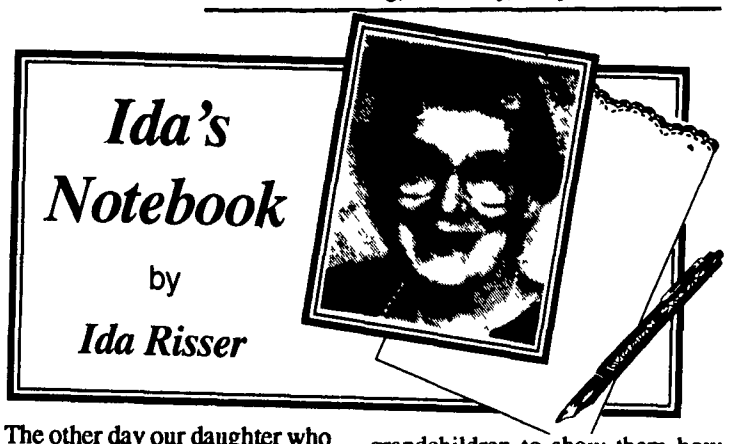
The Festival is a treat for all the senses. Visitors can taste ground cherry pie, fresh buttermilk, crusty pig stomach or a full-course church supper guaranteed to make you groan with satisfaction. Sights not to be missed are the wheel wright, rye stray hat making, and a daily Grand Fantastical parade.

The baaing of a sheep being sheared, the squeals of children playing "Blumsock," the smooth slide of a cabbage cutter, or the rag and bone man's call for his services can be heard drifting across the grounds. Men can run their fingers over a handmade gunstock or freshly made rope Children will want to cool their hands on the long block of ice in the iceman's wagons Women can finger and buy tinsmith's and Peddler's wares. There is itchy straw to play in and sticky peaches and ice cream that leaves the taste of summer in your mouth. Away from the wood smoke of hearths, throngs of the smith's hammer, visitors may take in a program presented in the park bandshell or listen to the fiddlers or the village brass band.

An apprentice carefully scratches a traditional design on a mahogany colored egg died with onion skins, "Chust for Nice"

This years' theme, "Just for Nice," will be carried out by the making of everyday items Nice, such as needle work trim on work shirts, whittling whimsies, or "Fraktur" bookplates Demonstrators will be placing traditional embellishments and folk motifs on items which in past appeared quite utilitarian The blacksmith may produce an 18th century style door handle decorated with a tulip and the cabinet maker an inlaid intricate scroll on a traditional piece of furniture Goschenhoppen ladies also can employ "Just for Nice" in the elaborate stitching on show towels, the decorating of Easter eggs, cut-out paper liners in jelly cupboard, fruit pies with "spider" crust, and the ultimate embellishment of Morning Glory Cake.

This year come with your families and search for Just for Nice at the Goschenhoppen Folk Festival on Friday, August 7, from 12 noon to 8 p m. and Saturday, August 8, 10 am to 6 pm at the New Goschenhoppen Park on 3rd Street in East Greenville, PA just off Route 29 in northern Montgomery County Children 12 and under get in free All others donate $6 For group rates or more information call (215) 234-8953



The other day our daughter who lives in Texas sent us pictures of her family and of a recent birthday party. She took the time to mark all 48 pictures.

If only people long ago had done the same thing. Most of my old photo albums are full of pictures with no names attached. Those that I could identify have been given to children and grandchildren of the folks pictured.

One of the earliest types of pictures was daguerrotypes which preceded the Civil War. These were often enclosed in book-type cases and lined with purple velvet. The style of dress and hairstyle is quite interesting. Their expressions are very serious as often the pose is a wedding portrait.

Today I try to mark all of my pictures as the film is developed. Then the pictures of our children taken long can be sent to the grandchildren to show them how their parents looked at the same age.

Some of the first colored pictures were developed in the '30s and '40s. However, they have faded over the years and so the pictures of the Grand Canyon, that I took many years ago, no longer show its splendor. Today methods of developing pictures have improved a lot and they will remain brilliant for many years.

When I have film developed, they are always made in duplicate. Therefore, I can send my children half of the pictures. But again they are marked and doing 50 pictures takes a bit of time.

As for now, I want to plant a long, long row of green beans where the sugar peas were removed. When it rains this afternoon, I'll have time to mark and date my pictures.

Teens Attend Penn State 4-H Ambassadors

Teen Ambassadors Represent 4-H

Amanda Koons, daughter of Cameron and Patty Koons of Muncy, and Shelly Vandine, daughter of Wayne and Ruth Vandine, also of Muncy, recently participated in the 10th Annual Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference held at the University Park Campus where they attended workshops on interviewing skills, media relations, and decision-making. These ambassadors will represent about 125,000 4-H members of Pennsylvania.

In addition to the workshops the conference delegates visited with a number of Penn State faculty and administrators during a reception.

State 4-H Ambassadors promote the 4-H youth program and the land-grant university system and are available to speak to groups about Penn State Cooperative Extension and 4-H.

Fresh Produce Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The strawberries look luscious and the peaches look promising, so you load them into the grocery cart and take them home.

Now what? Though research shows that less than one percent of all produce monitored by the Environmental Protection Agency exceeds the limits for pesticide residues, you still may have a nagging feeling that some pesticides linger on the produce you've bought. The following primer — from A to Z — will help assure that your fresh fruits and vegetables are washed and stored correctly and are safe to eat.

• Apples: Wash with cool water. If the water is too warm, a chalky white coating will appear. Applied prior to storage to assure a juicy apple, this coating is edible and not harmful. Store apples in a cold, humid environment.

• Bananas: Wash skin, peel and eat. Avoid grayish-yellow fruit that indicates a chilling injury; a banana with this coloring may never ripen correctly. Ripen at room temperature and refrigerate when the banana reaches the stage of ripeness that you prefer. The skin will darken in the refrigerator, but the fruit will not.

• Carrots: Buy firm, well-shaped roots with good orange color. Wash in cool water and brush or peel before serving. (Most baby carrots are not babies at all, but simply are regular carrots that have been shaved and shaped.)

• Grapes: At the point of purchase, gently shake a bunch. If few fall off, the grapes are fresh. Rinse in cool running water; refrigerate and use within one week.

• Lettuce: Clean, firm heads that give slightly when squeezed are bests. Rap the core soundly on the counter, twist and remove. Rinse under cool, running water just before use. Drain and store in tightly closed plastic bag or lettuce crisper. Insert a section of paper towel to help ensure a dry environment as well as to help control decay.

• Melons: Keep at room temperature for short periods of time, or refrigerate for longer storage. Wash carefully before cutting. Cantaloupe that smells sweet and yields to slight pressure at the blossom end (not the stem end) will be ripe. Watermelon is ripe when the underside (the part that lay on the ground) is yellowish and firm. If it is white or green, the melon is immature. Avoid bruised or soft melons.

• Onions: Keep at room temperature in a well-ventilated. dry area. An ideal container is a paper bag with slits cut into it. You can refrigerate onions if temperatures are high. Store up to four weeks. Peel and wash before using, and do not consume soft, moldy onions.

• Oranges: Green skin color or reddening does not affect quality. Store at room temperature or refrigerate. Wash skin before peeling, cutting or eating.

• Peaches: Avoid green-tinged fruits and those hard, dull or bruised. Wash, hold at room temperature to soften, then refrigerate. Use promptly after they ripen. Placing peaches, pears and nectarines in a perforated paper bag at room temperature will hasten ripening.

• Pears: Hold at room temperature for additional ripening, then refrigerate. Wash before eating.

• Potatoes: Choose clean, smooth potatoes, free of cuts or bruises. Avoid green-tinged potatoes and do not consume green parts. Never refrigerate potatoes; this encourages rot. Keep potatoes in a cool, well-ventilated dark area, away from light and moisture. Scrub well with brush and cool water.

• Sweet corn: Husks should be green, slightly damp and clinging to the ear, not yellow or dry. Wrap in plastic and store in the refrigerator. Use promptly after purchasing. Shuck; wash before using.

• Tomatoes: Place away from direct sunlight. Put in a paper bag to hasten ripening. When ripe, wash and refrigerate. Use within a few days.

• Zucchini: Store in perforated plastic bags in a refrigerator crisper. Wash just before cutting.

Best bets? Buy domestically grown produce, buy produce in season, wash all fresh produce, peel fruits that have thick skins, remove the outer leaves of leafy greens. And, for ultimate satisfaction, grow your own.

That first year there were Thirteen members and we have steadily grown to our current membership of One-hundred and Twelve. Each Agricultural Fair, Association or Society has at its focal point the education and showcase of agriculture, horticulture, etc. and over Seven million fairgoers each year can attest to the quality of what we have to offer.

At Fairs exhibitors compete for prize money, ribbons, or merely enjoy the competition. The following are only samples in which there is competition - livestock, hay & grain, vegetables, fruits, & nuts, baked and canned goods, flowers, sewing, art, grange exhibits, contests, and others. This can involve both young and old alike! Contact Fairs of your interest to see what areas of competition are available.

With Correct Headwear, Farmers Have It Made In The Shade

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – In photographs, television and film, the dominant image of a farmer usually includes a baseball hat a fashion choice that could be unhealthy in the long run, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Agricultural baseball caps, called "gimme" hats because they usually feature advertising for seed companies or heavy equipment manufactures, provide little protection from the sun, say Dennis Murphy, professor of agriculture engineering. "Baseball caps don't have a wide enough brim to offer much protection," Murphy says.

Sunshine is crucial for crops, but for farmers, prolonged unprotected exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays can lead to skin cancers. Using the correct headwear could mean the difference between life and death.

Baseball caps, by far the most popular farming hat, really only protect the front part of the face, Murphy says. Wide brimmed hats such as cowboy hats, Australian bush hats and straw hats like those worn by Amish farmers are an improvement, but eve wide-brimmed hats are not foolproof.

"You really need a hat that will protect the neck, ears and temples," Murphy says

The best style to wear is commonly known as the "French Foreign Legion" hat. This features the generous brim of a baseball cap and adds a protective cloth to cover the neck and ears

Another style to consider is the deerstalker cap, a double-brimmed style that covers the neck The deerstalker style is most commonly associated with the fictional detective Sherlock Holmes.

According to medical statistics, more than 600,000 Americans will be diagnosed with skin cancer this year. Murphy says common sites for skin cancer include the face, tips of ears, hands, neck, forearms and lips areas that farmers typically leave uncovered

To prevent skin cancer, farmers should use sunscreen regularly. Murphy suggests using a product with an SPF (sun protection factor) of at least 15, which will block 94 percent of ultraviolet B rays most likely to cause skin cancer The SPF factor is rating that multiplies the protection naturally provided by the skin For example, if your skin normally burns after an hour, using an SPF 15 sunscreen allows you 15 hours of exposure before burning

Murphy recommends dressing safely as well. Wear lightweight long-sleeved shirts and long pants. Light-colored clothing reflects heat and sunlight Workers never should go shirtless

Sunglasses also a must Prolonged exposure to the sun can damage the retinas, corneas and the lens of the eye

The sun is strongest between the hours of 10 a m and 3 p m Dermatologists recommend not working during these hours, but this is not a practical solution for most farmers, which is why the use of sunscreen and protective headwear by farmers is so important

Replant by having the new bed ready for them, including holes to plant them in. If the soil is very dry, fill the holes with water and allow it to drain away into the surrounding soil and then dig up the glads by keeping as much soil on the roots as possible to plant in a new bed.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration "

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor.

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes
with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

WHY HOOBER'S AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES CAN SERVE YOU BEST

THE 3 LAWS OF HOOBER'S RECONDITIONED COMBINES

Law #1

14 Years Old Is Not Equal To Worn Out . . .

Because of the simple design of the Case IH Axial-Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by Hoober's expert combine mechanics to like-new condition, so they provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

Law #2

3,500 Hours Plus Hoober Reconditioning Equals Years of Dependable Service

3,500 hours on a conventional combine usually means they'll be too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow combines with 3,500 hours, reconditioned by Hoober, have proven to run for years when purchased by farmers in PA, MD. DE and NJ.

Law #3

A Case IH Axial-Flow Combine Serviced By Expert Hoober Combine Mechanics Equals Little or No Downtime During Harvest

When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service and repair Axial-Flow combines in the off-season, they run dependably through the season.

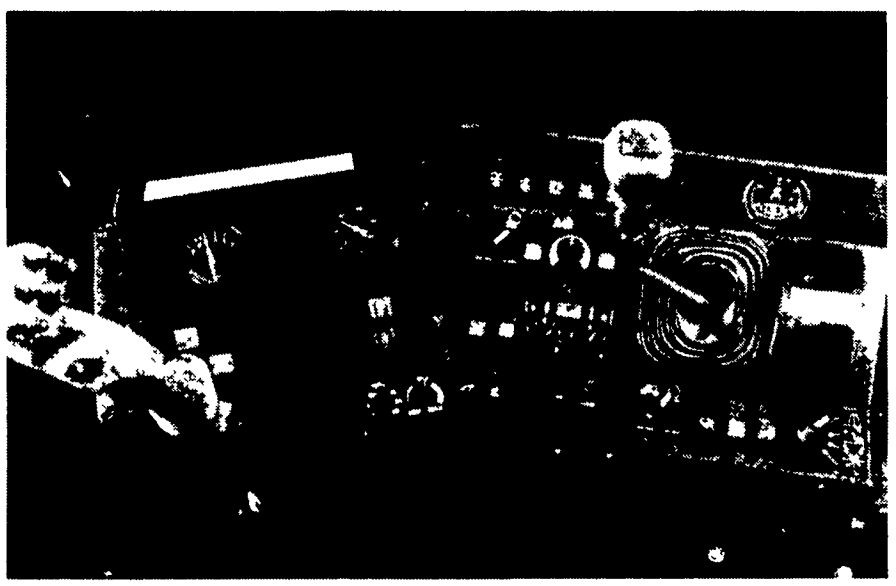
Farms in Europe are small compared to the U.S. In fact, in Germany they average just fifty acres. This makes it almost impossible for farmers to own large, efficient machinery to harvest crops, thus leading to a dependence on custom harvesters.

Claas KGaA, headquartered in Harsewinkel, Germany, has taken advantage of the need of custom harvesters in Western Europe, and the company now holds 61 percent of the self-propelled forage harvester market. They are the largest manufacturer of harvesting equipment in Western Europe.

Class of America currently has about 180 dealers in the U.S., and they project the number will grow to 300 in the next five years. Claas sells harvesters, balers, disc mowers and rotary rakes in the U.S.

The Claas Jaguar Forage Harvester has been sold in North America since 1993. It has a large variety of features. There is a high tech control panel where the main switches and controls are located, as well as the multifunctional control lever. The many automatic functions are controlled from the cab.

The machines are powered by a Mercedes turbocharged diesel engine. Special attention has been paid to accessibility of the various systems such as the oil cooler, air conditioning, engine and radiator to make maintenance easier. "They are easier to work on if you have to, with room to work and easy access to working parts," said Rex Logan, a custom cutter from Eckridge, Kansas.



The crop flow starts with one of three headers: a four row, six row or eight row header. The headers have self sharpening cutting discs. Besides the standard four, six and eight row corn heads, Claas also offers a row independent corn head with a cutting width of 15 feet. Double transport discs pick up the plant and feed them into the header. All corn heads can be equipped with an auto-pilot to steer through the rows automatically. It can also be equipped with a sensor controlled contour plus height control, enabling the header to hover over the ground with no ground pressure.

A basic requirement for quality chopping is that the crop is compressed before reaching the chopping cylinder. This is done by the intake and pre-compression rollers. The compression rollers crush and compress as they move the crop to the chopping cylinder. A metal detector, located in the front lower intake roller, recognizes ferrous metals. The feed rollers are stopped immediately if metal is detected and the intake stops in less than 3.0 seconds.

There are many other features such as the push button automatic blade sharpening which allows the operator to sharpen the blades in the field. "Claas' Automatic Greasing and Knife Sharpening lets me start cutting 20 to 30 minutes before other machines are in the field. That adds up to a lot of additional tonnage when you get that much extra cutting in every day," said Logan. "With the automatic sharpener you can touch up the knives while waiting for a truck. You do it from the cab with the touch of a button." The chevron knife arrangement has a pull effect that draws the crop to the center to create a straight-through crop flow, helping to maximize output.

Of special interest to feedlots is the corn cracker, (or mill) located behind the chopper in the crop flow stream, which cracks all the corn and mashes tough stem parts. Then the crop flow moves to the accelerator and is discharged through the chute. The corn cracker has separate replaceable roller jackets, which eliminates the need to replace the whole roller, cutting replacement costs by about 50 percent. All of the kernels are opened up and a friction action created by the roll differential is applied to the whole crop mass. The corn crackers can be removed and stored in the machine for quick changes of crops.

"With the automatic sharpener you can touch up the knives while waiting for a truck."
– Rex Logan
Custom Harvester

Logan toured the factory before purchasing his first piece of Claas Equipment. "I wasn't sure about buying one before visiting the factory, but I've seen the quality they build into their equipment. What I saw made a big difference in my decision."

When it comes to service, Claas has a history of reliability. "The service organization has taken good care of me. They have followed me all over the country," Logan said. "I've run about a 100,000 tons through two different Claas machines. I think their machines are exceptional."

Brand Returns to Ag Tire Market

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Michelin North America Inc. has announced the return of its BFGoodrich® brand to the agricultural tire market.

The brand is re-entering the market to offer today's American farmers affordable, quality solutions to their tire needs.

"The return of the legendary BFGoodrich brand name and the 'Power' farm product line is an event the American farmer will embrace because of the tremendous equity built over the decades," said Brent Robertson, manager — BFGoodrich® Farm and Ranch Tires

"These tires are geared to the farm whose equipment demands quality performance at an affordable cost. It is our goal to provide this segment of the market with new products to help increase productivity through less soil compaction, improved fuel economy and longer tire life."

Two radials and one bias ply tire make up the product line. These tires are designed to deliver the value and consistent performance traditionally associated with the BFGoodrich brand while offering cost effective access to today's more advanced technology.

The radials feature an R-1W design that offers extra lug depth which maximized their performance, especially in wet, heavy soils Additional benefits from radial construction include a larger contact patch for maximum traction and flexible sidewalls for a smooth ride.

The bias tire incorporates a traditional design proven to provide long-lasting, durable wear

Massey Ferguson Introduces Rotary Combine

ATLANTA, Ga — Massey Ferguson introduced the new MF 8780 rotary combine at its North American Dealer Meeting in Kansas City in July The MF 8780, a large Class VI combine, improves upon the successful MF 8570 rotary combine

"The new 8780 rotary is a unique combination of proven technology and new features for large harvest capacity, superior grain quality, and low grain loss," said Tom Draper, Massey Ferguson product marketing manager

"But we didn't stop there," said Draper "We designed an operating environment in this new combine that literally redefines comfort and convenience. Operating the Massey Ferguson 8780 rotary now turns combining into an enjoyable aspect of the harvest — not just a necessary one "

The unique Massey Ferguson rotary technology and wide choice of headers make the MF 8780 rotary havesting system productive for both individual farms and large custom harvesting operations The combine excels in operations that demand minimum crop damage, clean samples, and a forgiving and simple threshing system.

Massey Ferguson's new MF 8780 Class VI Rotary Combine features a larger, more comfortable cab with excellent header visibility, new controls for easier operation, expanded choice of headers, and new lateral header control to reduce header losses.

MF 8780 technology has been proven in crops such as rice, grass seeds, corn, wheat, oats, flax, barley, canola, and many similar crops The advanced hydrostatic rotor drive with accurate rotor load monitoring makes both experienced and inexperienced operators highly productive.

The MF 8780 is powered by a new Cummins "C" Series 8.3 liter diesel engine, rated at 260 hp at 2200 rpm, and features a Power Bulge to 275 hp at 2000 rpm to maintain combine performance in tough harvesting conditions and when unloading on-the-go.

The new MF 8780 rotary combine features load-sensing hydraulics, hydrostatic drive, four-speed constant-mesh transmission, and heavy-duty final drives.

The hydrostatic drive combined with the four-speed transmission provides an excellent range of travel speeds, minimizes gear changes, saves time, increases efficiency, and is easy to operate.

Simplicity of design with fewer moving parts — only nine drive belts and four drive chains for the entire threshing unit, including the hydrostatic ground drive — results in easier servicing, less down time, and reduced operating costs.

The large-capacity 230-bushel grain tank features a fast-filling clean grain auger and can be unloaded in approximately two minutes on-the-go with electrohydraulic control of turret unloader position and engagement.

Case IH X Series To Tour

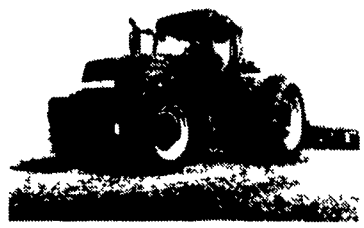
LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers interested in learning more about the revolutionary Case IH X Series tractors are invited to an upcoming tractor demonstration event sponsored by Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc., in Lititz.

Binkley & Hurst will host the Case IH X Series Tour on August 4 to demonstrate features of the X Series tractors, including the popular MX Series, MXC Series and CX
Series of tractors.

The demonstration will be held from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Binkley & Hurst dealership in Lititz, in conjunction with seminars in agronomy, as well as other programs.

Binkley & Hurst noted that with 21 new models ranging from 40 to 145 horsepower, there's an X Series tractor for every farm.

According to the dealership, with unmatched power, durability and comfort, the new X Series maximizes productivity across all farming applications, and the event is a great opportunity to see the versatility and ease of operation these tractors offer under everyday conditions.



Case IH MX 170 with Case IH 770 disk harrow, one of several tractors to be featured at Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. during an August 4 stop of the Case IH X Series Tour.

Dealership personnel and a special Case IH field support team will demonstrate key X Series features and advantages. According to the dealership, farmers also will have the opportunity to drive the tractors.

The X Series represents a new era in tractors for Case. Case engineers developed these machines for specific applications, relying heavily on what farmers told them they needed in a tractor.

The customer input has created a line of tractors with unique advantages for livestock and row crop applications, which the dealership sayas farmers will see once they're behind the wheel.

In addition to Case IH X Series tractors, Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. offers a full line of agricultural equipment, including MAGNUM tractors; EARLY RISER planters, and other seeding equipment; hay and forage machines; tillage implements and material-handling equipment.

Case Corporation, a leading worldwide designer, manufacturer and distributor of agricultural and construction equipment, is headquartered in Racine, Wis. The company had 1997 revenues of $6 billion, and its products are sold through a network of about 4,900 independent dealers and distributors in more than 150 countries.

Case Credit Corporation, a wholly owned subsidary of the company, services a portfolio of $5.3 billion of agricultural and construction equipment financing and leasing contracts.

Pioneer Tool Helps Producers Manage Potential Corn Herbicide Interaction

DES MOINES, Iowa — Corn producers have a new tool they can use to help reduce corn injury potential that may occur from the application of some herbicide families.

A "Corn Herbicide Hybrid Management Guide" that rates the herbicide/hybrid interaction of more than 100 Pioneer® brand hybrids to three major herbicide families is available from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

"Pioneer has been conducting herbicide-by-hybrid research for more than 20 years," said Paul Gaspar, Pioneer research manager in Mankato, Minn. "This guide is the result of four years of intensive rating of herbicide tolerance. It is designed to provide our customers with the information they will need to receive the maximum return from our hybrid corn products."

Gaspar points out that the results of Pioneer's research generally show the primary reason for crop response is due to environmental conditions the herbicide and hybrid encounter rather than to the tolerance of the hybrid. However, with the introduction of many new herbicides, some interactions have been identified.

The "Corn Herbicide Hybrid Management Guide" indicates hybrid response to three commonly used herbicide families: chloracetamides, growth regulators, and sulfonylureas.

Each herbicide family received one of four ratings with each Pioneer brand hybrid, based on research trials and field observations. They are:

• "Adequate tolerance": The herbicide/hybrid combination has acceptable tolerance to the herbicide. Therefore, under normal growing conditions, injury is unlikely to occur when label directions are followed.

• "Requires additional management": Under challenging environments such as sandy soils, low organic matter soils, high pH soils, cool wet conditions or hot and humid conditions, additional management is warranted to avoid herbicide injury. The management needed to reduce injury potential depends on the specific herbicide family.

• "Not recommended": The herbicide should not be applied to the hybrid.

• "Insufficient data": Additional testing is needed to evaluate the herbicide/hybrid combination.

An important key to avoiding herbicide injury is to carefully follow label directions, points out Jerome Lensing, Pioneer agronomist from Rochester, Minn.

"It's important that producers understand the different growth stages of the crop and the weeds. Use of a ruler to measure weeds can go a long way to getting improved weed control," Lensing said. "Once you've determined your game plan, applying herbicides should be done just like taking prescription medicine. Measure carefully and administer according to directions."

Dekalb Brings Space Age Technology To Breeding

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation announced today that it was granted a patent (#5,764,819) by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office directed to using remote sensing technology as a plant breeding tool.

The patented method utilizes advanced energy, sensing technology to capture information regarding the emission and reflectance of electromagnetic radiation from plants, which can be used to predict plant performance for breeding and crop advancement.

The National Aeronautical and Space Association (NASA) pioneered the early development of remote sensing technology for space applications. Dekalb began studying the application of this technology to corn breeding in the 1980s, leading to the discovery that corn lines grown under the same conditions differed in emission and reflectance of heat and light, and that these differences are related to performance. Since this information can be gathered via satellite or airplane, a vast amount of data can be collected in a short period of time.

"The additional information provided by remote sensing of plant traits that are invisible to the breeder should improve plant breeding productivity," said Dr. Catherine Mackey, vice president, research. "This patent is an important addition to Dekalb's portfolio of intellectual property."

Swine Embryo Transfer Called 'Next Frontier'

DEKALB, Ill. — Within 10 to 15 years, embryo transfer could replace artificial insemination as the primary means of accelerating genetic development in progressive swine operations, said Dr. David Fox, a geneticist and vice president of research and development for Dekalb Swine Breeders, Inc.

"Today, a sow has the capability to produce 2.5 litters a year, but she actually produces enough eggs to have many, many more," he said. "What we're looking at is the potential of taking ovaries from superior females, extracting the eggs, maturing them in a lab, fertilizing them with semen from top sire lines, and then implanting them in recipient sows.

"The technique needs to be perfected for on-farm use," he said, "but within the next decade or so, I could see embryo transfer becoming a commercially viable as A.I. is today. It's the next frontier."

In theory, nonsurgical embryo transfer would allow producers to significantly reduce genetic variation, improve consistency and change the way they manage their breeding programs.

"It may be possible for a 2,500-sow operation to produce all the embryos it needs with only 100 sows and three boars," Fox said. "The 2,500 sows would serve as surrogates.

With embryo transfers, he explains, the variation in progeny would be minimized, and producers could be more selective about their genetics. "The surrogate females would only need to be selected for maximizing reproductive traits, while the donor females would be selected with the optimum market pig in mind," he said.

Embryo transfer in swine will have to "walk before it runs," however. Any commercial applications in the near future probably would have to be done surgically. "But even then, embryo transfer offers obvious potential benefits," Fox said.

"Any time you're moving stock from one farm to another, there are always concerns about the animals' health profiles and the risk of introducing different disease organisms," he said. "Embryo transfer could greatly reduce that risk."

As an added benefit, embryo transfer could help reduce transportation costs, while also giving producers even broader genetic diversity. "Producers could buy embryos that are well suited to their specific needs or market," he said.

Dekalb has the technology in place to produce embryos for export to other countires for surgical implantation. "It's not something we're promoting at the moment, but we clearly have the capability," Fox said, "For now, our focus is in vitro fertilization and working with in vitro culture conditions needed to grow embryos to a cell stage that can be implanted surgically."

Longer term, one of Dekalb's goals is to make embryo transfer a dependable means of accelerating genetic improvement for commercial hog operations. "I think the day will come when instead of having an A.I. lab, we'll have an on-farm embryo lab and we'll implant them nonsurgically. We'd simply transfer embryos into the sow instead of inseminating semen."

The development of embryo technology will be facilitated by Dekalb's new Discovery Research Center. According to Fox, it houses one of the only commercial biotechnology laboratories in the world specific to swine.

Dekalb's commitment to biotechnology and R&D has already spawned numerous benefits for the U.S. pork industry. For example: for more than 20 years, Dekalb has been screening its breeding stock for positive carriers of the halothane gene. In 1992, technology involving DNA screening enabled the company to identify not only animals that were positive, but those that were carriers or negative for the gene.

"We made the decision to eliminate the halothane gene from our breeding herd," Fox said. "We felt this was an important not only for Dekalb, but for the entire U.S. pork industry."

He explains that the halothane gene lowers pH and water retention, which in turn produces more PSE (pale, soft, exudative) pork. In addition, the halothane gene causes more stress in pigs, which results in higher death loss from birth to market. "The halothane gene has no place in U.S. pork production," he said.

But Dekalb didn't stop there. In 1997, Dekalb suspected that Hampshire-derived breeding stock had a higher incidence of the Rn (Napole) gene, which often results in pale, watery meat. This was reinforced by Dekalb's own internal assessment, which showed its Hampshire line to have unacceptable meat quality.

"A DNA test for this gene has not yet been developed, so producers must rely on careful genetic selection," the geneticist said. "We felt it was important to eliminate all Hampshire-derived breeding stock from our breeding program."

Dekalb's use of PCR technology is also benefiting the pork industry. PCR, which stands for polymerase chain reaction, is a highly sensitive and extremely accurate tool that biotechnologists use to amplify DNA by several million times and then search for the presence or absence of certain genes.

Marker-assisted selection is another key element of Dekalb's biotechnology program. Identification markers that are associated with economically important traits can dramatically speed genetic progress, Fox said.

Biotechnology is hardly a new area for Dekalb Swine Breeders. Inspired by breakthroughs its sister company was making in seed corn and other plant genetics, the swine group established its first biotechnology laboratory in 1990.

"At Dekalb, I guess you could say that biotechnology is in our genes," Fox said. "We're very proud of the contributions we've made to the pork industry, but I feel our best work is yet to come."

Short-Term Drought Prediction May Help Communities

BOSTON, Mass. — The ability to predict drought one to several seasons in advance may save water resource planners and farmers billions of dollars, according to a team of Penn State researchers.

These researchers developed a computer model that can predict reliably the severity and timing of drought episodes six months in the future.

"Farmers would find it useful to have drought predictions in the spring for three or six months later," said Kelly Brennan, recent recipient of a Penn State master's degree in civil engineering. "Farmers could then change the crop they plant for something that is more late-summer drought tolerant."

One suggestion would be to plant crops with deeper root systems.

"Another important area, especially in the Ohio River Basin where we worked, is the need to maintain adequate river levels for barge traffic," Brennan told attendees at the spring meeting of the American Geophysical Union recently in Boston.

The normal practice is to lower reservoirs in winter and early spring to create enough storage capacity to retain excessive spring runoff that would otherwise cause flooding downstream. This practice can have very harmful consequences in years of drought, especially during the summer.

"A grounded barge can cost as much as $10,000 a day," said Brennan. "Low water levels may also affect water purity and supply and recreation."

Working with Dr. Ana Barros, assistant professor of civil engineering, Brennan developed a model that can predict extreme drought episodes three, six, and nine months in advance.

"The model uses a measure of the temporal evolution of the spatial variability of precipitation over a period of time in the past," said Brennan.

The researchers combine this measure with the accepted measure of current drought, the Palmer Drought Severity Index. The PDST uses soil moisture, temperature and precipitation along with specific parameters for the region to detect if there is a current drought. The PDSI is used to issue drought emergencies and to rescind them as well.

The model was tested and validated on historic data through 1996.

"We can predict drought three to six months in advance pretty well," said Brennan. "At the nine-month scale we can capture the timing of extreme droughts, but the severity of the drought is not as accurate."

The researchers would like to see their model running on current data so that it could be used as a real-time forecast model.

Lisa Mead, a biology undergraduate and a participant in the Women in Science and Engineering Internship program, also participated in this research.

Beekeepers Swarm To Pa. For Regional Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Beekeepers from 22 American states and Canadian provinces will attend the 1998 Eastern Apicultural Society (EAS) of North America Convention and Short Course at Seven Springs Resort in Champion July 13-17.

"Typically about 500 commercial and hobby beekeepers attend the event to get the latest information on beekeeping techniques, management practices, and research," said Jennifer Finley, EAS president and entomology research technician in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Some of the top bee scientists and experts from across the United States and Canada will present workshops."

The event kicks off at 8 a.m. on July 13 with registration. The short course begins at 9 a.m., with two levels of instruction. Level I is designed for entry-level beekeepers with five or fewer colonies or years of experience. Level II, titled "Making Money with Your Bees," is aimed at more experienced intermediate beekeepers. The short course concludes at noon on July 15.

The conference begins at 1:30 p.m. on July 15 and concludes with a banquet on the evening of July 17. Workshops will focus on apitherapy (medicinal use of bee venom and related products), crop pollination by bees, bee products, and control of diseases, and parasitic mites. An open apiary session on the afternoon of July 16 will give participants a chance to visit the conference beeyard for hands-on instruction presented by Master Beekeepers.

Among the speakers for the conference and short course are Finley; Maryann Frazier, Penn State extension entomologist; Scott Camazine, Penn State associate professor of entomology; Steve Taber, queen breeder and bee geneticist from California; Theo Cherbuliez, recent president of the American Apitherapy Society; David Hackenburg, Pennsylvania's largest commercial beekeeper and president of the American Beekeeping Federation; and several USDA-ARS research scientists, including Hachiro Shimanuki and Robert Danka. Friday night's banquet speaker will be John Root, head of the A.I. Root Company, the first and oldest bee supply company in the United States. The event also will feature commercial exhibitors as well as the EAS Annual Honey and Honey Products Show.

The EAS was established in 1959 to promote honey bee culture, the education of beekeepers, and excellence in bee research. It is the largest noncommercial beekeeping organization in the United States and one of the largest in the world.

Liquid Dispensing Unit Available

MADISON, Wis. — Bou-Matic, a company of DEC International, Inc., has introduced Dari-Chem, a programmable liquid chemical dispensing unit designed to convert manual chemical fill pipeline and milk cooler washers to automatic chemical dispensing operation.

The Dari-Chem programmable liquid chemical dispensing unit automatically dispenses the proper amount of liquid chemical or concentrates at the precise time in the cleaning cycle, without the need to manually refill chemical jars. "The basic purpose of this product is to convert manual chemical fill, either powder or liquid, washers to automatic liquid dispensing washers," according to Bou-Matic Product Manager, John Brzezinski. By using the Dari-Chem programmable liquid chemical dispensing unit, dairy producers can reduce handling chemicals by hand, make sure the proper concentration of chemicals is used every time at the right time, and save money by cleaning properly.

"With easy installation and programming, the Dari-Chem is a must for all dairy operators who demand simplicity, dependability and efficiency from their C.I.P. systems," Brzezinski said. The Dari-Chem can be used with all Deco-Matic cooler wash controls, as well as with Guardian I and PW-100 pipeline washers. Brzezinski said, "Three microprocessor controlled peristaltic pumps can be set to provide custom, dependable and economic wash cycles for dairy C.I.P. applications. And a manual override feature allows manual dispensing."

The Dari-Chem is microprocessor controlled for accuracy, versatility, and dependability. Replaceable PROM software for future product enhancements is included in the Dari-Chem, as well as an LED display indicating individual pump parameters. The Dari-Chem dispensing unit must be used in conjunction with either a cooler or pipeline wash control, according to Brzezinski.

Md. Grain Products to Meet July 23

EDGEWATER, Md. — John Phipps will be they keynote speaker at the 21st Annual Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) meeting to be held Thursday, July 23, at the Queen Anne's 4-H Park in Centreville.

John Phipps is a grain farmer from east central Illinois but is best known as a humorist and commentary writer for such publications as Farm Journal but is best known as a humorist and commentary writer for such publications as Farm Journal Top Producer. Phipps returned to the family farm in 1975 following a career as a mortgage banker. He will be providing humor and insight as he discusses "Back to the Future" – a droll lampooning of self-proclaimed ag "prophets" that crowd the ag speaking circuit in winter. He will discuss the future isn't what it used to be – and why that's a good thing. Phipps will include his own surefire predictions for farming's future.

Maryland Delegate Ronald Guns, who became "the voice" for agriculture in this year's legislative debate over nutrient management controls, will be among the featured speakers at the 1998 annual meeting of the MGPA.

In the wake of last summer's outbreaks of pfiesteria in Lower Shore tributaries of the Chesapeake Bay. Guns, chairman of the House Environmental Committee, squared off against Gov. Parris Glendening on behalf of farmers and the poultry industry and won less restrictive and less penalizing compromise legislation

Guns will discuss the role for Maryland's grain farmers as a result of the new legislation at the MGPA meeting, under the title "New Responsibilities for Farmers under the Water Quality Act of 1998."

Also on the program will be John Green of the National Corn Growers Association who will discuss export markets and how the U.S. stands up against its major competitors in the global marketplace.

Registration for the meeting will begin and the trade show will open at 11:30 a.m. The program will get underway at 1 p.m. with the election of officers and the awarding of MGPA's coveted "Man of the Year" Award. The event will conclude, starting at 4 p.m., with MGPA's traditional crab feast and pork and chicken barbecue.

For more information, contact Lynne Hoot, MGPA, at (410) 956-5771.

"Hi-Moisture Shelled Corn"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the many advantages of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

"Feed Costs... Radically Reduced"

JMJ Springpond Registered Holstein Farm began in 1989 when Jeffrey, Michael and Jennifer Davis, children of Ray and Francis Davis, wanted to farm. A farm near their home in Berks County near Leesport became available about the time Jeff and Mike graduated from high school. The siblings had been raising and successfully showing 4-H animals so they put their animals in a "JMJ" partnership and purchased additional cows to begin their dairy operation. Dad worked off the farm.

The family continues to be successful, milking 60 cows that continue to increase in production and show fine type with 12 or more cows classified VG to 89 points. It was the production part of the business that brought the Davis family to Purina.

"We were at a stalemate in early 1997," Mike said. "We thought we could get more milk but the feed cost was going up and up and we were not getting any more milk.

"We switched to Purina in April last year and we could tell a big difference within six weeks. Not only were we getting more milk, our feed costs were radically reduced. Purina's program put us on more home-grown roughages with less purchased feed. They balanced our haylage, corn silage, and high moisture corn in such a way that made it good for the cows and good for our bottom line."

Today the top record in the herd is 38,000m. Twelve cows are milking over 100 pounds per day and the herd average is over 24,000m an increase of 3,000 pounds of milk in 14 months since changing to Purina feeds without using BST. And while milk production increased, butter fat and protein held to previous levels.

Another major improvement is breeding efficiency. Before the move to Purina, first-time conception rate was 33 percent. Now they have a rate of 51 percent, a definite indicator of improved herd health. Of course, calves, heifers, and dry cows are fed Purina feeds.

"After we switched to Purina, feed costs went down and milk production went up," Mike said. "And production is still increasing. I can certainly recommend Purina's programs and their farm consultants like Dave Kiebach to other farmers. In fact, based on what we have experienced in our own herd, I have already done this."
